

SURVIVORS' STORIES STILL TELL OF BRAVERY OF MEN AND LACK OF LIFE BOATS

THREADS OF THE AWFUL TRAGEDY BEING PICKED UP FROM THE FORTUNATE ONES WHO SURVIVED THE DISASTER.

SURVIVORS CARED FOR

Faith of Officers and Passengers That Titanic Could Not Sink Caused Many to Lose Their Lives Who Might Have Been Rescued.

New York, April 20.—(By Associated Press.)—A week has passed since the Titanic, the greatest marine achievement in the history of the world, sank in mid-ocean. Much of this story is still unknown. Much of it will never be known. The world will never fully realize or comprehend the significance of a disaster which must rank, in many respects, as the most stupendous in modern history.

Dead Not Known. The number of dead probably will never be exactly determined, as it is as much as the complete passenger list went down with the vessel. The number of survivors is fixed at seven hundred and fifty by the report of Captain Rostron of the Carpathia.

Official Figures. The White Star line officials believe the death toll totaled approximately one thousand, six hundred and thirty-five. The narratives gathered from the survivors' tales are without precedent to the bravery of the men and women of these modern days, a bravery of impulse, unhesitating, unhesitating, and instinctive alike in steering passenger, stoker and millionaire.

Memorial Service. It is common consent the churches of the world will provide their pulpits tomorrow for a reverent consideration of the disaster and for mourning for the lost. As to the needs of the living ample provision is rapidly being made.

Relief Funds. The relief fund being gathered in New York and London already totals well up in the hundreds of thousands. Most of the sternest passengers who reached New York penniless have already come to realize the generosity and hospitality of Americans.

Cared For. Glad, fed and housed, they will be given ample time to recover from the shock of their experience and will start their life in New York with plenty of funds and kindly advice of excellent counselors.

The Inquiry. The most complete story of the Titanic's fate yet obtained is being rapidly gathered in New York by the members of the senate investigating committee.

Hears Testimony. The committee has already listened to the testimony of J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star line; Captain Rostron of the Carpathia; Charles W. Lightoller, second officer of the Titanic; and others.

Faith The Fault. The burden of testimony thus far presented emphasizes the unquestioning faith of the Titanic's officers in her unshakable character. The recklessness of steering at full speed through a sea where dangerous icebergs were known to threaten and the remarkable calmness with which passengers and crew faced the last moment of the sinking ship.

Prompt Action. The Titanic's fate has already resulted in prompt action by the transatlantic lines to insure lines hereafter taking a course far to the south-east of the iceberg section. The various lines have agreed on a new "long" course which dips far to the south of the course which the Titanic met disaster.

Smith Honored. There is little disposition to criticize Captain Smith for following the ocean line in which he met disaster. He showed unusual caution according to the naval hydrographers, in steering a course well to the south of the regular southern line.

New Route. The new route enroute provides that steamships shall dip to latitude 38.20 on the first of their course, making a total distance from New York to Seattle of 3,000 miles, whereas the distance is now reckoned 2,868 miles. Lines will be carried 270 miles below the route heretofore followed.

Loss of Time. The loss of time on the new course will be about 8 hours for a 21 knot boat. Boats of the Olympic class may elapse to fourteen hours longer, in crossing. They will gain, however, in having clear weather most of the time, avoiding delays from fog.

Some Criticism. There was some criticism among the survivors here today of the Titanic's crew inability to handle the life boats. "The crew of the Titanic was a new set of course," declared Mrs. George M. Stone of Cincinnati, "and had never been through a life boat drill or anything in the rudiments of launching, manning and equipping the boats."

Scores Lost. Scores of lives were thus ruthlessly wasted, a sacrifice to inefficiency. Had there been any sea running instead of the glassy calm that prevailed not a single passenger would have safely reached the surface of the water. The men did not know how to lower the boats, the boats were not provided with many of the supplies needed to handle an oar with reasonable skill.

No Boat Drills. Alford Major, steward of the Titanic, admitted that there had been no

ISMAY IS UNABLE TO SEE JUSTICE IN THE PRESENT CRITICISM

Tells Interviewers That He Is Not Being Treated Fairly in Present Criticism.

New York, April 20.—J. Bruce Ismay discussed with interviewers today the work of the senate investigating committee which he characterized as "brutally unfair." He said: "I cannot understand the senatorial inquiry. They are going at it in a manner that seems unjust, and the injustice lies heaviest upon me. Why I cannot even protect myself by having my counsel ask questions, I don't understand. I am by thinking I mean questions calculated to elicit witnesses up. On the contrary, questions to simplify involved meanings."

Discussing his departure from the Titanic, Mr. Ismay said: "I have searched my mind with deepest care. I have thought long

HOW CAPTAIN SMITH MET DEATH TRYING TO SAVE A CHILD

Was Swimming in Water After Ship Sank With Little Girl in His Arms When He Sank.

New York, April 20.—(By Associated Press.)—Taking refuge on the bridge of the ill-fated Titanic, two little children remained by the side of Captain Smith until that portion of the big ship had been swept by water.

Survivors of the crew who went down with the Titanic, but were saved by turning to an overturned life boat, today told of their gallant commander's effort to save the life of one of the children.

He died a sailor's death and the little girl he had entrusted her life to his care died with him. "He held the little girl under one arm," said James McGowan, a fireman, "as he jumped into the sea and endeavored to reach the nearest life boat with the child."

"I took the other child into my arms as I was swept from the bridge deck. When I plunged into

SENATE INQUIRY IS MOST SEARCHING AS TO MINUTE DETAILS

Wireless Operator of the Titanic Tells of Work on Vessel.

New York, April 20.—J. Bruce Ismay and other officials of the White Star line were subpoenaed today by the senate investigating committee to appear before it in Washington at 10:30 o'clock, Monday morning. The investigation in New York will be concluded today.

The first witness was Thomas C. Carrigan, the wireless operator on the Carpathia who was recalled to the stand. Senator Smith sought to clear up the messages that have passed between the Carpathia and Titanic.

"What was the last message sent to the Titanic?" asked Senator Smith. "We sent it word to have its life boats ready. That our life boats were ready and that we were steering to them as fast as we could."

"Did you send any messages that all the passengers had been saved or that the Titanic was being towed to Halifax?" asked Senator Smith.

"No, sir." "Nor anything like it." "Did you know such reports were being published to the world?" "No, sir."

"If the White Star line sent a message Monday morning, Rep. J. H. Hughes, Huntington, W. Va., 'Titanic' proceeding to Halifax. Passengers will probably land there Wednesday. All safe," they did not obtain the information on which that was based from you?"

"Nor do you know that it obtained it from any other operator on the Carpathia?" "No, sir."

Harold S. Brice, the surviving wireless operator of the Titanic, was the next witness. Brice said he was a native of London, was 22 years old, and had learned his profession in a British school of telegraphy. The witness said that according to arrangements he relayed Phillips the other wireless operator.

"Immediately the captain came in and said we had better send out a call for assistance," testified Brice. "Phillips asked if he wanted to send a distress call. The captain said he did. I could read what Phillips sent C. Q. D."

"How soon did you get a reply?" "As far as I know immediately. I could not hear what he received, however."

"The witness told of having intercepted a message from the Carpathia intended for the Titanic which told of the presence of three huge icebergs in the vicinity of the former vessel."

"I gave the message to the captain personally," he said. "Brice did not take down the message and could not give its precise form. 'The Carpathian was seeking out the Titanic and I merely noted that it was an ice report and told the captain.'"

Under a fire of questions Brice acknowledged that a half hour previously or at 4:30 Sunday afternoon he was working on his accounts in the wireless room when he heard the Carpathian trying to raise the Titanic. He did not respond as he was "busy."

"You had the telephone apparatus at your ear?" inquired Senator Smith in surprise. "Yes, sir."

"And you did not respond to the call?" "No, sir."

INJURED EMPLOYEE GETS $7,000 FROM COMPANY

Workman Who Has Arm Taken Off in Unprotected Machine Sues Company.

Oshkosh, April 20.—(By Associated Press.)—Oshkosh, Wis., has given a verdict of $7,000 in damages in circuit court today in a case against the Walto Bros. Carpet company of Oshkosh, Wis., which was working on a bay press which was alleged to be improperly protected and his right arm was caught and so badly mangled it had to be amputated at the elbow. He sued for $12,000.

PROFESSOR CLASSES CHOCOLATE WITH OPIUM

University of Wisconsin Professor Classes Chocolate Eaters With Drug Flenda.

Madison, April 20.—That chocolate eaters are victims of a drug habit and are in the same class with the morphine and opium fiend, was the statement of Prof. R. H. Whitbeck, of the University of Wisconsin, in one of his lectures in geography this morning. Although a drug habit, he declared it is the least harmful of all. He said it is a drug and stimulant and causes coeds to consume large quantities of chocolate.

DEDICATE NEW CAMPANILE AT VENICE NEXT WEEK.

Has Been Building Since Old Campanile Fell in 1902—Every Feature Faithfully Reproduced.

Venice, April 20.—For the first time in a decade the ears of the Venetians will be gladdened during the coming week by the sound of the famous bells of the Campanile of St. Mark's. Ever since the old Campanile fell in ruins in 1902 the work of rebuilding has been carried on. Today the beautiful tower stands just as before. Every feature has been faithfully reproduced, from the wonderful bronze statues to the famous chimneys for the sound of which Pope Pius X. has often expressed a yearning since he quit Venice for the Vatican. The formal dedication of the new Campanile is set for next Thursday. The municipality has issued an invitation to Italy and the world to attend the ceremonies, which will be conducted on an elaborate scale.

COLONEL VICTOR IN PRIMARIES FRIDAY

Incomplete Returns From Vote in Oregon and Nebraska Indicate Roosevelt Delegates Were Elected Yesterday.

Portland, Oregon, April 20.—With one fourth of the votes counted early today the indications were that Col. Roosevelt carried the state in the presidential preference primary by about 6,000 plurality. The race for second in line, President Taft and Senator La Follette running neck and neck, Governor Woodrow Wilson is apparently the democratic choice for the presidential nomination. In the contest over the U. S. senatorship on the republican ticket, Benjamin Bell, of Portland, is leading Senator Johnathan Bourne, Jr., and based on the present ratio he should carry the present ratio by between 8,000 and 10,000. Mr. Harry Lane of Portland has won the democratic nomination for U. S. senator.

In Nebraska. Omaha, Neb., April 20.—Col. Roosevelt seems to have been the overwhelming favorite of the republicans in the state wide presidential preference primary held in Nebraska yesterday and indications are that Champ Clark was chosen of the democrats. Due to the late closing of the polls only about one seventh of the vote it is estimated has been counted. Supporters of Harmon have practically given up hope.

ACCUSED MURDERER ACQUITTED BY JURY

Ashland Jury Freed Man Who Was on Trial for Shooting Man Who Insulted His Wife.

Ashland, April 20.—Has a man a right to kill a man who insults his wife? This question was answered affirmatively by an Ashland jury last night in the acquittal of Alvin Davis for the murder of Thomas Pruss. Davis and his wife arrived at Ashland on an evening train last December. He left his wife standing outside the hotel when he went inside to inquire for a room. Pruss, a drunken lumberjack, came out of a saloon and grossly insulted the woman. Davis coming out of the hotel flew at the insulter like a tiger, knocked him down twice, and killed him with his bare hands. Davis has been held without bonds since December 13. Last night a jury acquitted him. The state charged second degree murder. Davis was formerly a brakeman at Niles, Mich. He worked at West Allis and Tomahawk last year.

FRENCH LINER SAILS ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

Steamship La France Left Havre For New York Today With Large Passenger List—Notables on Board.

Paris, April 20.—The steamship La France, recently completed at St. Nazaire for the French Transatlantic line, sailed from Havre today on her maiden voyage to New York. She carries a large passenger list that includes many persons of distinction. Among those on board are the members of the French mission, headed by M. Hanotaux, which is conveying to America the bronze bust of "La France," by Auguste Rodin, for presentation to the United States. The bust is to be placed at the base of the monument to be dedicated next June to Samuel de Champlain, the French navigator and explorer.

Robert Bacon, the retiring United States ambassador to France, and Mrs. Bacon are sailing on the new steamship, also Arthur Hilly-Blanchard, hitherto first secretary at the United States embassy here, who has been transferred to Tokyo. Other passengers on La France include an important French delegation to the Red Cross convention to be held at Washington next month.

MOTHER AND CHILD DIE IN KEROSENE EXPLOSION

Mrs. Wm. Johnson Smothered to Death and Young Baby Smothered by Smoke.

Town Falls, Pa., April 20.—Mrs. William Johnson, wife of a farmer near here, was burned to death and her five months old baby smothered by smoke as a result of the explosion of kerosene while the woman was starting a fire early today.

QUEBEC FLOODS RUIN MAPLE SUGAR OUTPUT

Ice Jam in River Causes It to Overflow Banks and No Sugar Crop Can Be Gathered.

Quebec, April 20.—An ice jam has caused the Chaudiere to overflow with damage estimated at $250,000 in the region of Beauce. The maple sugar crop it is thought will be ruined. The federal and provincial governments will be asked to aid the flood sufferers.

FIVE YEAR SENTENCE FOR KILLING OF SON

Man Who Beat Three-Year-Old Lad Is Given Sentence in State's Prison.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 20.—A sentence of five years in the penitentiary was given today to John Sokolofski, the Menasha man who recently was convicted of manslaughter in the beating and degree growing out of the beating of his stepson, aged three and one-half years. The judge took the matter of sentence under advisement at the close of the trial.

BREAKING OF LEVEE FLOODED A COUNTY; MANY LIVES LOST

Two Hundred Persons Reported Drowned in Bolivar County, Miss., When Sudden Deluge Poured Over Land.

Jackson, Miss., April 20.—Reports reached here today that 200 persons have been drowned in Bolivar county, Miss., by the flood that swept through that section when the river dikes broke near Bolivar. Bolivar county is covered with water and efforts to verify the report are meeting with many obstacles. The reports declare many white persons were swept away by the deluge, although it is said the majority of victims were negroes who failed to reach high ground in time to get out of the flood's path. Gov. Earl Brewer was advised today there are 6,000 refugees in camp at Cleveland and the food supply will last less than 24 hours.

Near Benoit. Greenville, Miss., April 20.—Fifteen persons are known to have been drowned during last night near Benoit, in the flood that came between Benoit and Bolivar, Miss. Unverified reports of other and more extensive loss of life are being received here today. Because of the extent of the present flood, river observers express the opinion that the loss of life in this section of the delta will reach 200.

WATER RISES

Tullahoma, La., April 20.—Water from the dog tail crevice in the Mississippi river continues to rise here today with no sign of abatement. Every section of the town is inundated by water from 2 to 10 feet deep. An appeal has been made to the flood relief committee at New Orleans for motor boats to be used in carrying relief to those marooned in the interior of Madison parish. Two boatloads of provisions were distributed here yesterday, but as there are many refugees here from the flooded plantations this relief will be only temporary.

Worse Than Ever Before. Greenville, Miss., April 20.—Estimates of the death list have been based on comparison of conditions in this deluge with previous floods. The water now is higher than ever before known in this territory. Houses of many farmers are known to have been flooded. Confusion existing among the refugees makes any estimate of the known dead somewhat vague. Women hysterically have declared they saw their loved ones swept away; that the persons in question turned up later. The chief concern of the district officers is the problem of providing for the living. Thousands of families are in a destitute condition.

OPEN UP IRRIGATED LANDS TO SETTLERS

Fourth Unit of Shoshone Project Will Be Thrown on Market Monday in Eighty Acre Tracts.

Powell, Wyo., April 20.—A new land of promise for the land-hungry and the home-seekers is to be opened Monday, when the Government will offer to settlers the lands embraced in the fourth unit of the Shoshone irrigation project, lying to the north and west of this town. The farms are mostly eighty acres each and contain some of the finest land on the Shoshone project, which eventually will reclaim 120,000 acres east of the Yellowstone National Park in northern Wyoming.

Three years ago this spring the first unit of the Shoshone irrigation project, consisting of 15,000 acres, was opened. This was followed at intervals of a year by the opening of the second and third units. Settlers have poured into the valley from all sections of the country. About five hundred families are now established on the first three units and have built on the first three units and have built the roads, schools, and churches. The project has railroad facilities, rural delivery, telephones, and there are thriving towns at short intervals. The towns of Garland and Itatou have grown rapidly and Cody is assuming metropolitan airs. Three years ago the Government established the town of Powell in the center of the irrigable area. The town is the headquarters of the United States Reclamation Service on the Shoshone project and, though only three years old, it boasts of good schools, churches, hotels and stores.

FORGE IS THOUGHT TO BE ON WAY TO GERMANY

Oshkosh, April 20.—Gustav Horn, a Milwaukee salesman wanted in this city and at Sheboygan on a forgery charge, is believed by local police to be on his way to Germany. He was formerly a salesman for the Johnston Soap company of Milwaukee, but it said to have been discharged a month ago.

Senate Adopts Maritime Resolution Looking Toward International Control of Seas.

Washington, April 20.—The United States senate today adopted the amended maritime resolution looking to a more complete international regulation of ocean traffic. The resolution advises the President that the senate would favor treaties with the great maritime powers regulating speed, routes, life-saving and wireless equipment. Searchlights were especially recommended.

OLYMPIC CAPTAIN DENIES SENDING A FALSE REPORT

London, April 20.—Captain Haddock of the White Star line steamship Olympic, on arriving at Plymouth this morning from New York, denied that the Olympic sent out a wireless report to the effect that the Allen line steamship Virginian was towing the Titanic and that all of the latter's passengers were safe. The passengers of the Olympic, which is a sister ship to the ill-fated Titanic, subscribed $7,000 to the relief fund of the survivors.

RELIEF COMMITTEE TO MEET WITH GOVERNOR

WEEK'S BANK REPORT EXCEEDS LAST REPORT.

Surplus of Over Seventeen Million Shows Increase of Eight Million in Clearing Houses.

New York, April 20.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks held $17,299,000 in reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase over last week of $8,782,000 in the proportionate cash reserve.

ONE STEAMSHIP LINE QUICK TO TAKE ACTION AT HEART

Hamburg, Germany, April 20.—The Hamburg-American line has been quick to draw a lesson from the Titanic catastrophe. It has decided to increase the number of life boats on its steamers although they already carry more than are required by the German law.

GLIDEWAY WANT 5,000 BIBLES

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 20.—A campaign to raise funds sufficient for the purchase of 5,000 Bibles was launched here today at the annual convention of the Michigan Glidways, or association of Christian traveling men. It is proposed to place one of the Bibles in each guest room in every hotel in western Michigan.

AN EQUAL SHOW TO ALL

No "want" ad, however small is overlooked when it is classified under the proper heading in Gazette "Wants." Classified making the small ad large.

Speaking of lovers, the want page is the great leveler in advertising. The seeker for a room house or store usually reads all the ads, great and small under the different classifications.

A good "want" ad tells all the important facts about a proposition and when placed in The Gazette is certain to be read whether two lines or twenty in length.

REMAINS OF JOHN FITZGERALD BURIED

Requiem Mass Was Celebrated at St. Patrick's Church at 9:30 O'clock This Morning.

Requiem mass for John Fitzgerald, the well known Janesville pioneer who passed away at his home in this city at an early hour Thursday, was celebrated at 9:30 o'clock this morning in St. Patrick's church, the Rev. Dean E. E. Kelly, officiating. The pall-bearers were George E. Coy of Harmony and J. H. Coy of Chicago, his stepsons; W. A. Rossow of Beloit and C. C. Decker of Harmony.

JOHN FITZGERALD

son-in-law; John L. Wilcox and Edward Wilcox of this city. Burial was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Those from out of the city who attended the funeral besides those already named were Miss Elizabeth Smith and Henry Smith of Kaukauna, Wis., sister and brother of Mrs. Fitzgerald; Mrs. M. C. Connelly and John Noonan of Chicago, niece and nephew of the deceased; Mrs. J. G. Smith of Kaukauna, Mrs. W. A. Rossow of Beloit, and Mrs. J. H. Coy of Chicago. A large number of friends of Mr. Fitzgerald and his family were present at the services and accompanied his remains to Mt. Olivet cemetery where the remains were interred. His long residence in this city, his goodness of character, and unwavering honesty won him a large acquaintance and was the foundation of numerous long and enduring friendships.

Dr. Martin J. Lunn, a Chicago physician known to many Janesville people, died yesterday at his home after a week's illness at the age of forty-two years. Dr. Lunn was born in Beloit and was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lunn. He was a graduate of the Beloit academy and of the Chicago College of Physicians and Surgeons. He leaves to mourn his untimely death his wife, mother, two sisters and four brothers. The sisters are Miss Martha Lunn of Chicago, Miss Julia Lunn of Beloit. The brothers are Dr. Charles Lunn of Madison, Ill., Dr. Jacob Lunn of Manila, P. I., John, of Kansas City, and Benjamin, of Beloit. Funeral services will be held from the home in Chicago on Monday.

Funeral services for John P. Palmer of Milton Junction will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at St. Mary's church in that city. The Rev. Father McGinnity will celebrate mass. The remains will be brought to this city for interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

C. & N. W. RANK LIST IS POSTED LOCAL MEN NEAR HEAD.

The rank list of the engineers on the Northwestern was posted yesterday on the bulletin board at the round house and several local men appear among the first. G. E. Brandt is first on the list, H. H. McCloskey ninth and J. W. Lewis eleventh.

Master Mechanic Hoffman was accompanied to Chicago Wednesday to receive the safety banner by Hood and J. Clark. The banner which was won by the Wisconsin Division was presented to representatives of the safety committees all over the system at Chicago yesterday, was held by the Sioux City Division last year. The following clipping was taken from the Chicago Examiner and shows why the Wisconsin Division was given the banner this year:

As a result of fifteen months' work the safety committee of the Chicago & Northwestern Road reports a material decrease in deaths and accidents. The Wisconsin Division was first in the list of efficiency in this line. For the fifteen months ending April 1 the following report is made: Twenty-five fewer trainmen killed, 1,700 fewer trainmen injured, 5 fewer switchmen killed, 132 fewer switchmen injured, 1 fewer stationman killed, 940 fewer brakemen killed, 120 fewer brakemen injured, 5 fewer car repairmen killed, 13 fewer car repairmen injured, 1 fewer shop and roundhouse employee killed, 21 fewer shop and roundhouse employees injured, 1 fewer other employee killed, for the year there was an increase of 7 track laborers killed, 2 more bridge workers killed, and an increase of 13 of other employees killed. There were 12 fewer passengers killed and 176 fewer persons injured.

Engines 154, 121, and 1057 were coupled together Thursday night when they went through from the Chicago shops on their way to the Peninsula Division where they will be placed in service. They went over the Northern Wisconsin division.

Mr. Edward Herlt has been appointed watch inspector of the Northwestern at Rhineland, Wis., to succeed Mr. L. P. Merrill.

Engine 337 was steamed up and sent out this morning after undergoing a general overhauling in the local shops.

Storekeeper Frank Hommesay was in Harvard yesterday on company business.

John Clark is still in Chicago on a visit.

Timekeeper Frank Ward had a narrow escape the other day from what would have probably been a serious accident, while watching some of the youngsters fly their big kites near the roundhouse. In some manner Frank got tangled in the string and only the united efforts of the spectators were able to save him from being taken up.

Two switch engines are employed at the yards days and one nights at present.

Engine 1552 which is one of the new superheated class E types with engine O'Brien is being broken in in the local shops to go into active service on the North Coast Limited shortly.

Frank Allinson who is employed at the local roundhouse was the recipient of many expressions of sympathy from his fellow employees this morning upon the announcement of the loss of a suit.

C. M. & St. P.

Engineer Shleker is laying off for a few days until he can get moved. Harter is taking his place on 91 during his absence.

Engineer Meyers took 165 out this morning.

Owing to the slackening up of business no extra have been sent out since night before last when one went east.

Engine 56 which has been undergoing a general overhauling in the shops will be sent out this afternoon and 733 which has also been given some repairs will be sent out Monday.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

Could Hardly Eat. Gradually Grew Worse. Relieved by Peruna.

Mr. A. M. Ikard.

The stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was offensive and I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I concluded to try Peruna, and I found relief and a cure for that dreadful disease, catarrh. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Mannin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle of it in my house all the time."

Cardinal Farley 70 Years Old.

New York, April 20.—Cardinal Farley celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth today in an unostentatious manner. There was no official observance of the day, but messages of congratulation in the form of letters and telegrams poured into his residence from all parts of the world.

Cardinal Farley was born in Ireland, April 20, 1842, came to America as a boy and studied for the priesthood here and in Rome, where he was ordained. He became Bishop in 1895 and Archbishop of New York in 1902. He was elevated to the Cardinals in 1911.

BALMY BREEZES BRING THOUGHTS OF HOUSECLEANING TO FELIX AND FINK.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS by DAN McCARTY

Following the International Chess Master's tournament, which was won by the Russian champion, comes the announcement that A. R. Rubinstein of Lodz, has challenged Dr. Emanuel Lasker for the world's championship. In view of Rubinstein's unusual record as an international player, a meeting between him and Dr. Lasker will be watched with interest. The two have met only once, at a tournament in St. Petersburg three years ago, when Lasker was defeated.

The historic Pimlico track, will hold its racing meeting this spring from April 27 to May 15 inclusive. Racing in Maryland is under state supervision. Permission is given the patrons of the track to bet. There will be six races a day, one of which will be devoted to the steeple chase horses. The Maryland Jockey Club managers have been liberal in their aid money and no purse will be worth less than $400. All of the overnight handicaps have at least $500 added to them. There are a number of stakes features for 2 and 3 year olds at one mile and a furlong and has $1,500 added to sweepstakes of $40 each for starters.

In all purse races no entrance fee will be charged, but $5 will be charged to scratch down to eight entries. After 12 o'clock noon all horsemen who wish to withdraw their horses will have to pay 5 per cent of the value of the purse and must have written permission of the stewards. This rule will prevent wholesale scratching after entries have been published.

Memphis has a pitcher—or did have one until the Brooklyn outfit put him out of business in an exhibition game—who bids fair to make the baseball world take notice of him. Not because he is such a blinger of a pitcher, though, it's his size. He is six feet eight inches in his socks, and they say he can almost reach from first to third without taking his foot off the slab. He couldn't field bunts.

BASERAIL NOTED.
Storero had luck for Charlie Doon's Phillies. Catcher Killefer is out of the game nursing a broken finger.

The Southern League will use the double umpire system this season for the first time in the history of the league. From all accounts the Buffalo Club has copied a classy infielder in Arthur Jones, recently released by the New York Giants. Bert Keeley, former pitcher with the Washington team, has been engaged as playing manager by the Chicago Club of the United States League. Pitcher Harmon, of the Cardinals, started the season by downing the Pirates. Last year Harmon tied the Pirates in knots every time they

That's what quored him, for when the Brooklynites found it out, they fed him bunts (all the cows came home). The name of the room is Hono Love.

Dorrell Pratt, the southern youth who is second muckling for the Browns and who is rated a coming star, has all but ended a dispute as to his stardom qualifications. Like Cobb, he roared about his room. When the Browns arrived in Cleveland recently for a series with the Naps they were placed in one large room and Pratt drew one of them.

"Why don't you get some more beds in that room?" he inquired sarcastically of Secretary Mason. "Very much minor league, that. In the Southern League—"

To make the star parrot complete Pratt should have demanded that the Browns leave the hotel. On being refused this, he should have backed his grip and returned to St. Louis.

The Central association A. A. U. wrestling tournament opened at the Cleveland Athletic Club Thursday night. The entry list includes 40 men. Several winners in the A. A. U. tournament at Chicago last year are entered. The matches are limited to six minutes and the wrestler showing the most aggressiveness, if there are no falls, is given the decision.

Joe Delahanty of the famous Delahanty baseball family has signed to play with the Cleveland team in the United States League. Joe was with Toronto in the International league last year. He will play the outfield.

Work has begun on the grandstand of the new league at Luna park ball grounds. The stands are to be completed by May 1, and will seat 4,600. Manager Jack O'Connor is after Howard Wakefield, former Nap catcher.

Catcher Gabby Street believes that the Highlanders have the strongest pitching staff in the American League in Vaughn, Ford, Caldwell and Warhop. Texarkana, Marshall, Park, Globe, Longview and Tyler, six young cities in Texas, form the circuit of the South Central League this season. Right Fielder Miller, of the Terre Haute Central League team, is from Hillsville, Va., and the bugs have named him Sidna in honor of the great outlaw.

On April 11 George Appleton, the veteran baseball fan of Boston, saw his forty-first consecutive opening on the old South End grounds—the first in 1871.

Manager Jimmy Burke, of the Indianapolis team, has released Lew Ritter, the veteran backstop, and signed "Nik" Clarke, the former Cleveland-St. Louis catcher.

The Central International Baseball League, which was organized in Duluth recently, will place teams in Winnipeg, Man., Grand Forks, N. D., Duluth and Virginia, Minn., and Superior, Wis.

BOWLERS AT ANNUAL FEAST LAST NIGHT

Members of Janesville Bowling League Held Banquet in Caladonia Rooms Last Evening, Ending Most Successful Season.

With a banquet held last evening in the Caladonia rooms last evening, the 1911-12 season of the Janesville Bowling League was brought to a most successful close. About thirty members of the league were present, a buffet lunch being served. Afterwards an impromptu program was given. Dr. G. D. Theurer, secretary and treasurer of the league, acting as toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by all captains of the league. Music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Roy Carter, George Haumann, and Howard Clithero. The award of prizes to the winning teams was made last evening. To the Sox, who held first place, a box of cigars and a picture of the team, were awarded; the Tigers, who won second place, received a box of cigars, and

McDaniels Makes Good

The following complimentary notice of H. H. McDaniels appears in the Harley Davidson "News" and will be read by "Mac" many friends with interest: H. H. McDaniels of the Beecher Cycle company, 122 Corn Exchange building, Janesville, Wis., representative of the Harley-Davidson Motor Company, is an example of what a hustler can do in these days if he keeps his eyes open, is awake when opportunity knocks at the door and is not only ready but anxious to follow opportunity's beckoning.

Four short years ago Mr. McDaniels was a traveling salesman for a wholesale grocery house. As a seller of groceries he was a hustler. His hustling for his firm brought him a salary of $150 a month. But McDaniels came to the conclusion that if he was worth $150 a month to someone else he ought to be worth that much—and more—to himself.

So he kept his eyes open while he kept on hustling in the selling of groceries. He came to the conclusion that a revival of the bicycle era was about due. He found that the "back to the farm" desire in the hearts of thousands meant that they would resort to the bicycle to take them into the country for recreation if they could not go there to live. He found that increasing numbers of people were using the bicycle daily. And then Mr. McDaniels quit his job and gave up his salary of $150 a month to go into the bicycle business, buying out a business in Janesville that was bringing in but $300 a year gross income. Some of his friends thought McDaniels was making a mistake. But he was positive that the conclusions he had reached when on the road were correct and that the bicycle trade was due for a revival.

Last year Mr. McDaniels did a gross business of $12,047. He had made good in following the beckoning of opportunity. He had demonstrated conclusively that the bicycle business was far from dead. His bicycle business had grown into a motorcycle business.

Now Mr. McDaniels is an important figure in the motorcycle world. Upon a recent visit to the Harley-Davidson factory in Milwaukee he said that he had sold twenty-five motorcycles before the middle of April as compared with a total of three for the entire season of 1911.

The outlook for big sales of motorcycles looked so good to Mr. McDaniels that he sold out his Janesville bicycle business to J. A. Beecher, retaining the agency for the Harley-Davidson motorcycle. Then Mr. McDaniels began to look for other worlds to conquer.

It seemed the most natural thing in the world to go to the state capital at Madison. By that time Mr. McDaniels was not following opportunity. He was leading her a lively chase.

Soon after Mr. McDaniels arrived at Madison, Wis., he bought out three concerns, Small & Stevens, A. L. Berg and the Excelsior Motor company. Then Mr. McDaniels made a proposition to Mr. Beecher. The result was the organization of a motorcycle selling corporation to be known as the Beecher Cycle Company.

Joe Schuren was employed to look after the business of the company in Madison. Mr. McDaniels gives the business his personal attention at Janesville and now he is planning to open a store at Beloit. The stores at Janesville and at 113 State St., Madison, are merely the forerunners. It seems, of a string of stores that "Happy Mac" enviously wholedsome grocery drummer, plans to establish.

the Naps, winners of third place, also received a box of cigars. For the highest individual score, Leon Myhr was presented with a box of cigars, and William Helso, who had second highest score, was given a box of cigars. The success of the past season, the amount of interest shown in the outcome of the race for first honors, and the prospects for next season were discussed at the banquet.

WITH THE BOXERS.
Jim Stewart, the heavyweight, is ill at his home in Brooklyn with pneumonia. Promoter McIntosh, of Australia, is building a stadium at Melbourne that will cost him $25,000. Carl Morris will start another boxing campaign April 28 when he meets Frank McCarthy at Springfield, Mo.

MRS. FRICK PASSES AWAY AT HER HOME

Well Known Edgerton Lady Dies at Her Home After Long Sickness With Cancer.

Edgerton, Wis., April 20.—Mrs. William Frick passed away at the family home in the Third ward Thursday night at 10:20 o'clock. Afflicted with cancer for the past five years and the disease failing to yield to medical treatment, it soon became apparent that the end would come gradually, although she was never confined to her bed at any time with the exception of the past two weeks. Annie Stephens was born August 18, 1847, at Whitechurch, Tavistock, England, on August 5, 1887, she was united in marriage to William Frick. Residing in England for some years the family came to America and settled in Edgerton ten years ago.

Besides the husband five children survive, three daughters, and two sons, Nellie, Salena and Elsie, and William and Frank, all of whom were born in England, the youngest daughter, Elsie, being five years of age when the family arrived here. A kind and loving wife and mother, a good neighbor and friend, she was ever ready to render aid to the sick and afflicted and her memory will ever be cherished by the sorrowing family and all with whom she formed the acquaintance.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the M. E. church, Rev. G. K. MacIntosh officiating. Interment will be made in Passett cemetery.

Local News.
W. T. Pomroy transacted business in Janesville yesterday. Attorney G. W. Blanchard returned yesterday from a business trip of several days in Milwaukee. Job Marsden departed last night for Mitchell, S. D., to remain over the summer with his son, Alvin Marsden and family, having been here since last fall.

Mrs. Robert P. Manned of Chicago arrived last night on a visit over Sunday.

100% EFFICIENCY At All Times

the Wonderful Maxwell Record in the Hardest of Glidden Tours

In winning this year's Glidden Tour, Maxwell Cars gave a demonstration of efficiency that has never been equaled in any automobile endurance contest held in this country.

The 1454-mile journey covered such frightful road conditions that every other contesting team was put out of the running. Despite mud, sand, swollen streams and cloudbursts, the Maxwell cars reached every noon and night control exactly on the minute.

61 cars competed, including cars priced up to $6000, but the Maxwell was the only team to finish with a perfect score. Beside winning the Glidden Trophy, a fourth Maxwell—Governor Hoke Smith's entry—won the individual trophy the Anderson Trophy.

The Maxwells made 55 miles an hour when necessary. They wore the earliest car tires in the tour—two finishing with New York air in all tires, and a third only sustaining three punctures.

The Maxwell car is the lowest priced car that has ever won a Glidden Tour.

Its wonderful showing in the tour was no surprise to 47,000 Maxwell owners who have learned to know Maxwell dependability through years of consistent daily service.

This Maxwell is the staunchest, sturdiest, most reliable and popular runabout made. It is the 1912 successor of the famous model "A B" Runabout, 21,000 Maxwell owners drive this car. 14,000 of them are doctors requiring reliability and economy above all things. Anyone can learn to drive it in fifteen minutes—can care for it in fifteen minutes a day. It is so simple and easy to handle that it is an ideal ladies' car.

Let us give you a demonstration of this Maxwell Messenger—or of any other 1912 Maxwell model, all unequalled Maxwell values. Write for catalogue to day without fail.

CLEANING UP DAY AT WEST SIDE FIRE STATION

Men Clear Away Junk That Has Been Accumulating for Many Years

Room is Needed.

Firemen at the West Side fire station were busy today clearing out junk which has been accumulating in a room upstairs for many years because the chief has never been authorized to dispose of it. Included in the collection were many pounds of insulated copper wire, odds and ends with the insulation rotted or worn off and of no value to the department. These were piled up on the vacant lot across the street and the insulation burned off. The copper wire will be sold by the city.

WHAT IS THE NEED OF LOCAL SCOUTS?

SEVERAL POSSIBLE CAUSES ASIGNED FOR TEMPORARY SLUMP IN INTEREST HERE.

IS COUNCIL INACTIVE?

Rumors Are Abroad That Directing Board of Prominent Citizens Have Not Worked Any Too Diligently.

What more than anything else is the need of the Jansville Scout? This is a question of some importance according to the reports which are being circulated as to the local situation. One answer might be that parents should be made to realize what the Scout movement really means and to recognize the benefits which would result to their boys if they were identified with the local organization.

It is stated, however, on good authority that one of the greatest immediate needs of the Jansville Scouts is a more active interest, not alone on the part of parents, but on the part of the local Scout Council which is supposed to be the directing force of the entire organization in this city. According to the system of the Scout association which is national in its scope, each local society is supervised for the purpose of general management and direction by a Scout Council which is composed of business and professional men or others who are sufficiently interested, who hold meetings regularly and prepare plans and advance ideas for the improvement and furtherance of the advantages to the Scouts.

Work of Council. The more active work and actual training and direction given to the boys is accomplished through a sort of intermediate officer known as the Scout Master who spends time with the Scouts teaching them Scout lore, camp craft, nature study, as well as the fundamental principles embodied in the Scout Law. The Scout Masters must be men who are accustomed to and interested in boys, men who will command respect as well as inspire the trust and confidence of the boys entrusted to them.

But the Scout Masters cannot accomplish the results which would be possible unless they have the active support and hearty encouragement of the Council. They should confer with the Council and the committees of the same to learn what will be the best policies to pursue in regard to the boys in their charge. The Council should attend to all the financial affairs of the Scout organization. It is their place to see that the actual needs of the Scouts for equipment and furnishings should be as far as possible and expedient, be supplied and at all times they should keep in mind the best interests of the Scouts.

With a Scout Council and the Scout Masters working in harmony and actively interested in the solution of any and all Scout problems, the Scouts themselves will not fail to advance rapidly and surely in the correct path as outlined by the national Scout officers and council. This is agreed to be the case in every city where the Scout movement has been successful.

Is Council Inactive? It has been charged that the Jansville Council is not as active as it should be in the work of the Scouts. However this may be, there is good authority for the statement, that this is no time for a slump in the Scout movement. An awakening is demanded at once, may the Scout Masters, both of whom are diligent and persevering in the work as far as they can be with the backing of a somewhat indifferent Scout Council, which it is said, has not had a meeting since December.

It has been suggested that one Scout Master be secured who will be able to devote his entire time to the Scouts during the summer. This will entail the expenditure of some small amount of money, for no man can give up his occupation and engage in such work for nothing. There, then is such where the Scout Council can get in their best work. They can make possible the completion of this plan which means so much to the Scouts of this city. It is quite evident that the responsibility in this matter lies.

One true value of the Scout movement was recently outlined by Scout Master Jack in speaking of the merit or credit system which has been evolved for the local Scouts. By this system a record is kept of each boy who is a Scout member. The record includes marks favorable and unfavorable in the Scout work, while out of jurisdiction of the Scout Masters as far as can be correctly learned, and all creditable work in school or elsewhere which has been achieved by the Scout.

Record.

It will be seen from this outline that any boy who has been a Scout for any length of time will have a complete record of his conduct and achievement during his period of membership. The system inspires a spirit of rivalry among the boys and arouses an enthusiasm in the various games, drills, and exercises which result in instilling the Scout precepts almost unconsciously on the boy's mind. Of not a little value would such a credit system be to men who have occasion to employ boys during the summer vacations or at other times. If the boy is a Scout the material question would be, what is his record? He only has to inquire of the Scout Masters and he will learn the individual qualities, good and bad, of the boy in question. He will learn his trustworthy characteristics or his faults and failings.

In fact there is already a prejudice on the part of local employers of boys in favor of the Scouts. They are found to be more trustworthy and reliable, more eager to learn and accomplish the desired results, than some of the other boys. That such a condition of affairs should be so is quite the rule with Scouts may be realized when one reads the oath which all Scouts must take and the primary laws which he promises to obey. The oath and the Scout laws are given below:

The Scout Oath.

Before he becomes a scout a boy must promise:

- On my honor I will do my best;
- To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout Law;
- To help other people at all times;
- To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

The Scout Laws.

Following are the twelve laws which the boy promises to obey:

1. A Scout is trustworthy. If he is to be trusted, he must tell the truth, or by cheating, or by not doing exactly a given task, when trusted on his honor, he may be directed to hand over his Scout badge.
2. A Scout is loyal. He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due; his Scout leader, his home, his parents and his country.
3. A Scout is helpful. He must be prepared at any time to save life, help injured persons, and share the home duties. He must do at least ONE GOOD TURN TO SOMEBODY EVERY DAY.
4. A Scout is friendly. He is a friend to all and a brother to every Scout.
5. A Scout is courteous. He is polite to all especially to women and children, old people, and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful and courteous.
6. A Scout is kind. He is a friend to animals. He will not kill nor hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.
7. A Scout is obedient. He obeys his parents, scout master, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities.
8. A Scout is cheerful. He smiles whenever he can. His cheerfulness is his strength and his glory. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.
9. A Scout is thrifty. He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay but must not receive this for courtesies or good turns.
10. A Scout is brave. He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear and has to stand up for right against the coaxings of friends of the Jews or threats of enemies, and defeat does not down him.
11. A Scout is clean. He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits and travels with a clean crowd.
12. A Scout is reverent. He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties, and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

DESIGNATE DAYS FOR A GENERAL CLEAN-UP

First Three Days in May Will Be Anti-Debris, Anti-Disease, and Anti-Fire Days.

The first, second, and third days of May have been set as the anti-debris, anti-disease, and anti-fire days—in other words, as general clean-up days. It is hoped and even expected that all Jansville become enthused in this matter which is of vital importance to everyone. What is expected of every family within the city limits, whether they be living in property owned by themselves, or in rented property, is to give their premises a thorough cleaning. Begin in your cellar first and clean it of everything that is not of use to you. So many neglect the cleaning of the cellar, which in reality is the first and helpful part to be cleaned. Then clear the back yard of everything that is not of actual use to you. This includes ashes, garbage, manure; in fact everything from the cans to worn out, useless vagans.

Take the leaves, dead grass, etc., from your back and front yards and burn it so that the ashes therefrom may be hauled away. All the material to be hauled away should be piled in the street near the curb.

I expect to appoint someone in each ward to have supervision of the work of that ward. This person will divide the ward into, say, five districts, and appoint someone to have charge of each district. It is hoped that the school teachers will interest the children in this work.

I will write further regarding the plans and how the work is to be done next week.

M. A. CUNNINGHAM.

MONTHLY STATEMENTS CONDITION OF CITY

Mayor and Councilmen Will Issue Them For Information of Public—excepting Washington Street.

Monthly statements, showing the condition of the city, the amount of cash it has on hand, its outstanding orders, debts and other important information for the citizen, will be issued by the Mayor and Councilmen at the beginning of each month, beginning May 1. A statement of this kind was made in their inaugural announcement, showing the state of the city's finances on April 15, when they took office. All business will be conducted in the most systematic manner and account given of every transaction.

The council, at the close of its session yesterday, adjourned until 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. At that time it is probable that they will take action on the recommendation of City Health Officer Cunningham concerning the city's part in clean up day. Following yesterday's meeting the council, in company with City Engineer C. V. Kerch, made an inspection of North Washington street.

BROTHER DUTTON NOT VICTIM OF LEPROSY

Faithful Missionary Among the Lepers of Hawaii is Aiding in Stamping Out Terrible Disease.

In an article printed in The Gazette a short time ago it was stated that Brother Dutton was reported to have taken leprosy himself, but an article in the "Mid-Pacific," a magazine published at Honolulu, Hawaii, contradicts this in the following manner:

Of recent years the disease known as leprosy, or Hansen's disease, has been brought to a standstill and those who now suffer are being cured, but a few hundred in all the islands are affected and these are gathered about Brother Dutton at Kilauea, on the island of Molokai. So long as it is believed that Hansen's disease will disappear from Hawaii, and it is a disease seldom or never contracted by the white man, and the children of the physicians grow up in perfect health in the settlement, while Brother Dutton and the sisters and nurses in charge of the settlement have never shown any signs of contracting the disease, although brought into daily contact with it, even the children of those affected escape the disease, and now that a cure has been found it loses its terror to a great degree.

MOTION IS DENIED IN MONAHAN CASE

Motion on Part of Fairbanks-Morse Company to Settle Second Bill of Execution, Denied Today.

A motion on the part of the defendant in the case of James H. Monahan versus the Fairbanks-Morse Manufacturing company to settle a further or second bill of execution in this case was denied by Judge Grimm in the circuit court this morning. Joseph B. Doe, Milwaukee, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mount and Oestreich for the defendant, and offering said motion.

Argument by counsel was heard and by consent of the attorneys it was stipulated and agreed that in the case of the denial of the present motion of the court, the court may consider a motion to amend the original bill of execution, the motion having been considered as made in open court. The court ordered that both motions be denied.

Divorce Granted.

The divorce case of Ruby Z. Clifton versus Ernest W. Clifton was heard before Judge Grimm this morning. T. D. Woodson, on the part of the defendant, withdrew the answer to the complaint and made a defense. The plaintiff and Miss Griffith were sworn and gave testimony. The divorce was granted and the plaintiff was given the custody of the minor child, ordering alimony for the support of the same due from the defendant monthly.

No Jury in May. Judge Grimm signed an order this morning directing that no jury be drawn for the May term of the court which is called for May 6th. Next Saturday, April 27, will be the last day for filing motions for trial at the May term.

TO BEGIN WORK ON PAVEMENT NEXT WEEK

Gund & Graham of Freeport Will Put Force of Men Preparing Sub-grade on Main North Street.

Work on the pavement of North Main street, from Milwaukee street to Fourth avenue, will be begun next week. A force of men superintended by George Gund will start preparing the sub-grade on the west side of the street between Milwaukee street and the East Side fire station. This section, together with the part of the street between the car tracks, will be paved and completed before work is begun on the east side in order to interfere as little as possible with the heavy traffic to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul freight depot, and also to permit the fire apparatus to leave the station without interruption. Mr. Gund, who returned Thursday from Freeport, where he had been supervising similar work for the company, reports that the city will lay brick pavement costing $90,000 this season.

A Campaign Against Wild Indians in Civil War Times

A campaign against wild Indians in Civil War times seems peculiar, perhaps, to those who never heard of it, yet such an expedition actually was sent out, and D. H. Baldwin of this city was one of the men who went with the party, although he returned from the fighting in the improvised ambulance, being taken sick with the march.

The incident occurred in the year 1864, when Mr. Baldwin was a member of the Fourteenth Illinois Cavalry regiment, a part of the division commanded at that time by General Samuel D. Sturgis. Then Sturgis and his forces were in Tuckalee Cave, when information was received that a force of Indians and whites, commanded by a Colonel Thomas, a former Indian agent for the Cherokee nation, was near the forks of the Little Tennessee and Tuckalee rivers, North Carolina. The band had been terrorizing the people of East Tennessee and the borders of North Carolina, because of daily atrocities. Mr. Baldwin, with the 14th Illinois, was ordered to pursue the force of Indians and destroy them.

The band was reported to number three hundred, a sort of flying command. A high compliment was paid to Mr. Baldwin's regiment when it was selected from a whole corps of cavalry, to march across the mountains in midwinter to punish the band of savages. The regiment numbered about two hundred and fifty men, the ranks having been thinned out by hard fighting and hard service. The orders were to cross a high range of mountains, carrying ration and horse feed, to follow an Indian trail for seventy-five miles through narrow passes, where a few men, well-armed, could withstand an army.

The regiment started on the expedition on Sunday morning, January 31, 1864 leaving camp at seven o'clock in the morning, all men and horses unit for service having been sent to Marysville. The four columns of the battery were filled with ammunition, and two howitzers were taken with the regiment.

The situation was indeed a precarious one, and great skill was required to maintain a foothold on the side of the mountain, winding its way around some bald cliff at the edge of a yawning chasm, or climbing what seemed to be a perpendicular side of the mountain. The regiment reached Kadee's Cove, whose inhabitants were said to be real sympathizers, that night. However, they found plenty of hay, oats and corn, and next day the troops kept on with the march, passing Bald Mountain, the highest of the Allegheny peaks. A short distance further the boundary between North Carolina and Tennessee was crossed and soon after they began the descent of the range by the same tortuous method. On February 2, after being aroused at four o'clock in the morning to make the march, the regiment reached the junction of the Little Tennessee and the Tuckalee to No Land Creek, where a staunch Union man resided. Garrett informed the party that the Indians were in camp only three miles away, on the north bank of the Tuckalee river and at the mouth of Deep Creek.

The Indian camp was on a shelf of land on the bank of the river, which was to the right of the regiment. To their left and back of the camp and at hill covered with low, scrubby thorn bushes.

The success of the expedition depended upon surprising the Indians. Six of the red sentinels were captured and in silence the command went forward. The regiment was divided into two columns, one to charge into the camp, and the other to charge into the thicket on the west side.

Down upon the camp the cavalry charged, with sabres gleaming. Those of the astonished Indians who attempted to stay the charge were laid low. The Indians fell back to the side of the hill in the brush, and for a time poured a hot fire into the ranks of the cavalry, which formed a line, left-faced, and fired back at the Indians, who retired to the summit of the hill. The soldiers, without tying horses or leaving horse guard, rushed into the thickets after the Indians, and soon were engaged in an old-fashioned frontier fight. The Indians were completely surrounded except on the north. The fight was hot and exciting while it lasted, but in thirty minutes the battleground was cleared, the Indians leaving sixty of their dead on the field and fifty-six prisoners. Indians seldom leave wounded on the field and it was impossible to know how many wounded they took away with them. Of the Union forces, two were killed and five or six were wounded. The dead were buried, and having no ambulances, several heavy wagons were used to carry the wounded, a roundabout way being taken on the return trip.

The Indians who escaped the fire of the Union soldiers doubtless long remembered the fire of the howitzers, for they had a mortal dread of these weapons. The reports of the affair are interesting, and corroborative of the facts. They also tell of the slaughter of the Indians. Gen. Sturgis, in his report, said: "I am just in receipt of a dispatch announcing the surprise of the Indians on Feb. 2 near Quallatown. The enemy were 250 strong. Of these twenty-two Indians and thirty-two whites were captured, including some officers. It is reported that less than fifty escaped, the rest being killed or wounded. In this affair, Lieutenant Catron, a gallant young officer of the 14th Illinois Cavalry was seriously and perhaps mortally wounded while charging the enemy. This was an enterprise of great difficulty, through a rough, mountainous country, destitute of supplies of any kind. Major Davidson is deserving of great credit for the manner in which he executed his instructions."

On the return trip the regiment encountered new difficulties. The roundabout route was taken partly in the expectation of capturing some horses, as the troop had been disappointed in attempting to get those of the band. On the morning of February 3, the regiment marched south, five miles to the Little Tennessee, where scouts reported that the built-up mountain road was broken down and impassable, so they were compelled to return the way they had come.

On their return they came to the house of a Major Sellers, an officer in the Indian Legion, whom they took with them. Major Sellers was a mercurial, and as they did not wish to separate him from all his property they took what they could of flour, corn and other useful articles, including a fine two-horse buggy, in which to convey the wounded.

New York's Wealth.
According to the tabulation figures in the tax books for 1912 real estate in New York is assessed at $7,225,474,063. Estimating the realty which is exempt from taxation at $2,500,000,000, the value of all real estate in the five boroughs approximates $10,000,000,000 (ten billions). The assessed valuation of taxable property in New York has been raised in the last 14 years, or since consolidation, from $2,463,135,637.

Ridiculous.

Edgar A. Brown, the Denver millionaire who is writing a book about his two years' voluntary experiment as an "out-of-work," said the other day: "One trouble about poverty is that it makes you ridiculous. You need shaving, your trousers are fringed at the ends, your coat has a hole in the elbow. Yes, to be poor is ridiculous—as ridiculous as being misquoted in the press." Mr. Brown laughed gently. "A friend of mine," he said, "was misquoted in the press last week. My friend, in a sociological address, said: 'Whisky makes men genial for a time.' But his favorite paper reported this remark as: 'Whisky makes me genial for a time.'"

Had No Objections.
A Union officer appeared before the mistress of a southern home, saluted and said: "Madame, a federal soldier has been killed on your place. Have we your permission to bury him here?" The old woman drew herself up proudly. "Sir," she replied, "You may bury the whole Union army here, if you wish!"

No Objections.
"Yes, sir; I can marry you and the girl, all right, but I am not a regular pastor. I'm a travelling preacher." "Suits me all the better; I'm a travelling man."

Quick Meal Gasoline Stoves

"QUICK MEAL" STOVES WERE AWARDED GRAND PRIZE AND GOLD MEDAL AT ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

"Quick Meal" Stoves are constructed according to the safety requirements of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and are on the list of permitted stoves.

The "Quick Meal" is as pretty and as serviceable a stove as was ever built. Sheet steel frame well braced and japanned. The burners are simple, strong and durable and can easily be taken apart and cleaned. The high shelf is gracefully curved and has no sharp corners to gather dust or dirt. Brass tanks. A perfect perfect Gasoline Stove can be made.

Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stoves

"Quick Meal" Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stoves are a phenomenal success. They are the most permanent and satisfactory class of oil stoves to buy, as the burners are more powerful and easier to take care of than any stove using cotton wick burner. The wickless burner has no parts to unscrew and every part is easily accessible and quickly repaired.

Wick Blue Flame Oil Stoves

We also carry the "Quick Meal" Wick Blue Flame line of stoves which are attractive in appearance, have simple burners, a smokeless device and are easily cleaned.

Come in and get our prices on the "Quick Meal" line before buying.

"TITELOCK" METAL SHINGLES

Positively the best roofing made. Will last a life time. First cost is small and it's the last cost.

GALVANIZED

"TITELOCK" Shingles are galvanized after they are formed; therefore all parts, crevices and edges are evenly and thoroughly covered by immersion in the hot metal, insuring absolute proof against rust formation and corrosion. When metal shingles are made from sheets that are galvanized before shingles are stamped, the raw edges are exposed, cracks and abrasions of the zinc coating occur, especially when forming the locks with the result that rust, the foe of metal, enters through, causing the roof to leak and go to pieces. For galvanizing we use only Prime Spelter, which makes the heaviest and best coating.

PAINTING
"TITELOCK" Metal Shingles are made of the best 16 full-weight Open-Hearth, Terne Plates, in two very artistic patterns, as the illustrations will show. They are practically indestructible, being absolutely proof against lightning, fire and water. These shingles are treated to a coat of Iron Oxide Paint, mixed with pure boiled Linseed Oil, by a dipping process which thoroughly covers all parts, including the lock and edges—a most important feature.

Are You Ready for that Life Policy SEE US NOW!

Some men pay $10 to $20 per year just to carry insurance. When the year is gone their money has no more value to them.

Why not SAVE your money by investing it in a twenty year endowment policy in the Aetna Life Insurance Co., one of the biggest and strongest of all the old line companies?

At the end of the insurance period you will get it all back with interest. During the period you will have been insured.

It's like building a house on the monthly payment plan compared to paying rent. The renter has his receipts, the other man has the house.

One man pays for insurance each year and has his receipts. The other man takes out a 20-year endowment policy and he has his entire capital with interest.

The man who has a 20-year endowment policy can borrow money on it the same as the man who owns his own home. The man who has straight insurance SPENDS HIS MONEY. The man who has a 20-year endowment policy SAVES it.

Investigate our policy NOW, today. It's a great comfort in after years. It's a protection to your family. It's a money saver!

SEMINARY TO OFFER MORE COLLEGE WORK

Evansville Seminary, Will Introduce Second Year College Work Next Year—Other News.

Evansville, April 20.—Preparations are being made at the Seminary to introduce sophomore college work next year. This will enable the student to secure half of their university course here at very much less expense and many can thus secure a college education that could not do so otherwise. The current school year has been a prosperous one for the seminary, but the addition of another year of college work to the curriculum means additional expense for next year and the need of generous support from the public.

The former pupils of Mr. John Talar, who are now residing in Evansville, gave him a very pleasant surprise Friday evening, the occasion being the sixty-ninth anniversary of his birthday. A company of about thirty presented themselves at his residence with well filled baskets and a look on their faces that said as plain as words: "We're here for a good time."

A bountiful supper was served and a social evening was greatly enjoyed. The guests departed leaving many good wishes and several remembrances in the way of birthday gifts.

At the last meeting of the City Council, the street and alley committee recommended the laying of a sanitary sewer on Second street from Lincoln to Liberty street, and a petition for a storm sewer on Church street from Third street to Allen's Creek, was presented to the council, and referred to the street and alley committee.

Gross Rentals	-	$20,626.81
Operation, Taxes, Etc.,	-	20,556.94
Net Revenue	-	$ 69.87

In 1910 they did better, as their report for that year showed a profit in Janesville of $1,485.87. If they keep on gaining (?) in this ratio they won't get rich very fast in Janesville. The Home Beautiful

An ideal home built on the mission style. This design has a number of unique features to commend it, good light in all the rooms, wide eaves and a general appearance of solidity are especially noticeable. With ordinary care in the selection of materials this should be one of the most permanent of homes, and after the building is completed, very little expenditure is necessary for keeping it in repair. The man who is looking for a home slightly different cannot but appreciate this design and the material can be secured in any locality. Surrounded with plenty of lawn or even on an ordinary city lot the building is attractive and enduring in appearance.

Frame two story dwelling, size 26 x 32 feet. Note the entry at front, also the large living room with large fireplace, plenty of light and living porch at the side. Stories: first 9 feet 4 inches; second 8 feet 6 inches. The interior is plaster stucco work, concrete foundation and slate roof. This house is very well lighted and planned. The projection of the cornice being so great gives the house a very cheering look.

Cost to build in average location about $3,500 with pine finish and modern plumbing.

"ELECTRIC LIGHTED"

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

IN THE "upper" classes of society there are many people who think that in order to prove their superiority they must look down scornfully upon the "lower classes" and speak antagonistically of them.

Among my friends, I number a beautiful and talented woman, who, to me, is married by this one fault—that she often speaks disparagingly and disdainfully of the "lower" classes. "They get all they deserve," she says. "Why should they demand higher wages when they are too ignorant to earn any more?" "These people whom you pity are usually ignorant and disagreeable and do not appreciate decent treatment," etc., etc.

Now I am not a socialist. I am not sure of any panacea for present conditions. I do not claim to have any idea as to just what is wrong, but this is the way I feel about it: something must be wrong, or else it would not be possible for some men to have hundreds of millions of dollars, and for other men to work all the days of their lives from morn till night, and still not earn enough to support themselves, their wives and even two or three children. I know that Elbert Hubbard and some other brilliant writers would have us pity the poor employer who is everywhere hampered by the ignorance, stupidity, disobedience, and violence of his employees, but I can't see it that way. Suppose he is hampered; he manages to make a good deal more than a decent living for himself and his own, doesn't he? And that is enough, I think. My sympathy is with the under dog every time, and it seems to me that anyone who can say that the under dog must stay down because he is down, and that there is no sense in giving him a chance to live like a decent creature because he has never had that chance, and can thus dispose of the matter, is morally lacking.

Sometimes, like everyone else, I wish that I were rich, and then again, I'm thoroughly glad that I haven't that responsibility. I was looking at a magnificently appointed limousine the other day, and I thought how beautiful it would be to have that to take me to the theater, or to my work on a stormy day, and then again I was glad that I would probably never have it. For it did not seem to me as if I could be content with such a luxury and knowing of the people who lack necessities. And yet, if I had it, I probably would lack the strength of mind to give it up.

One of the most tragic characters in the Bible to me is the rich young man of whom it is written that "Jesus, beholding him loved him"—something which is said of no other man or woman. And yet "he went away grieved; for he had great possessions." If this man had been just a poor fisherman like Peter, untrammelled by the chains of wealth and luxury, probably he, too, would have followed Christ and become one of the personal friends of the world's greatest Man.

To the happiest and bluest of us, there come moments of very serious thought—when we wake up in the night and feel quite detached from the daylight world of happiness and business, when we are ill, when we are in church, when trouble or sorrow breaks our routine. I wonder if there are not many rich folks who, in such moments, have solemn doubts about their own right to their luxuries. It seems to me there must be.

I have wandered far afield. I started to simply rebuke those who think that they demonstrate their superiority by being antagonistic to the cause of the under dog, and I have said much more. Perhaps too much. But if I have started someone, hitherto indifferent, to thinking on this subject, I am not sorry.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The secret of success is constancy of purpose.

OMELETS IN PAPER BAG.

The process of folding an omelet is solved when cooked in a paper bag, as the bag is well greased and the egg mixture poured in and the bag laid on the rack; in five minutes lower the heat a little and cook fifteen minutes.

Any variation may be made, adding chopped chicken, ham, parsley or fruit, as desired. When the omelet is cooked in a paper bag it is well to carry it, bag and all, on a platter to the table, and serve from the bag.

A Plain Omelet.—Beat very light three eggs, separating the yolks from the whites. Add to the yolks a tablespoon of flour. Melt a teaspoonful of butter in a pint of milk; beat it gradually into the yolks. The milk must be hot; then fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a buttered bag and bake fifteen minutes.

Chicken Omelet.—When preparing the omelet and using chicken, add a little more flour to the eggs, then just before putting into the bag fold in a cupful of minced chicken, seasoned with onion juice or celery. For ham omelet leave out half the amount of flour, and if the ham is salt, add a little salt. Water may be used instead of milk, adding more butter. Grind the ham and season to taste with a pinch of sugar. Put the ham in before folding in the whites. Mix and cook fifteen minutes in a well-buttered bag in a hot oven at first.

Spanish Omelet.—Chop very fine one stalk of celery, a green pepper scalded in boiling water, one small onion, one large tomato, salt, pepper and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Mix well and cook until tender in a little butter. Make a six-egg omelet for this amount of seasoning, and cook as above.

An omelet is a dish that may be served at any meal, and is especially good for breakfast and luncheon dish.

Nellie Maxwell.
UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING

Inviting Untidy Habits at the Table—Cookery with a Relish.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Idles for untidiness are often repeated without thought. For instance I have seen the feeding tray tends to make little children careless in eating. Careful mothers put these trays on to keep the table clean thus making the family table unsightly but the smallest child is quick to see that he is treated differently from the grown ups and is less apt to arrive to imitate them.

Recently I saw a little boy and girl.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-four and have been married nearly four years. I was unhappy for a while because my husband was not interested in my pleasures outside the home, and my life was so monotonous. I wanted him to enjoy people with me and because he would not I became resentful. I had to have something of the life I had been used to. About a year ago one of the boys from my home town began to call on me and take me motoring. That was the beginning of a new and varied life for me and now I am enjoying the parties and dances and dinners that I used to with almost the abandon of my girlhood. My husband and I are growing farther apart every day, and not because I wish it to be so, but simply because I cannot busy myself in the monotony he would have me live in. Am I doing wrong? And how can I help it? REGRET.

Your husband has certainly made it very hard for you, but are you in any way to blame for this incompatibility? Have you entered into his interests as you ought, and talked with him to make him see how vital a matter it is that you hold your interests together? Perhaps it has never occurred to him that you must have diversions and pleasures outside the home, and that an occasional change for you is as important as the restfulness of home is to him, after a hard and busy day. each barely two years old and in different families and circumstances. Each had table manners that would be hard to excel, yet neither wore a bit but had a napkin pinned about the neck and at the close of the meal asked to have it unpinned then wiped mouth and hands and held it up to be folded, a task too great for the baby hands.

More than this, each child took its share of the simple food like soup bread and a portion of delicate dessert without asking for the heavier food eaten by its elders.

Eating hastily without a table cloth or on a table oil cloth, as many school children are allowed to do at times, makes them careless when they are served at a properly set table.

A mother cannot do much better for her child than to teach it to eat daintily for this must be acquired in early years. Awkward or offensive table manners count greatly against one later in life and it is extremely hard to shake them off even by great effort.

Beefsteak and onions is a savory if homely dish and when no one is going anywhere, or no one is coming, it is a good plan to have this combination. However in the modern family it is rather difficult to meet just these conditions.

For a steak large enough to serve three people one pint of sliced onions will be enough. Cook the onions in boiling water half an hour and drain for this will reduce the strong flavor.

(1). Sometimes a little lemon juice will bring mayonnaise back to its proper consistency, but when this fails, the only thing I know of to do is to begin again with another yolk of an egg as foundation. It is quite as important to stir the oil in carefully each time before adding more as it is not to get too much. (2). Alternate two or three layers of bread crumbs with as many layers of chopped apples, sprinkling sugar over the apples each time. Shake crumbs.

TALKS with our WOMEN READERS by Edna K. Wooley

"The youngsters these days are all together too forward," remarked a blonde woman in one of those new Derby crowned salons.

"Why, they even notice and criticize your dress if it isn't quite up-to-date," she went on, in injured tones.

"The other day I came across one of these little lumps. She wasn't more than four years old. Her mother and she got into the same car where I was. Both of them were dressed very nicely and appeared to be prosperous and refined."

"The mother took the vacant seat just behind me and lifted the little girl into the seat beside me. I sat next to the window."

"The little thing fidgeted around for a moment. Then she addressed me. 'Say,' said that baby, 'I want to sit by the window. I wish you would move over.'"

"Oh you do," said I.

"Yes, move over," commanded the child, peremptorily.

"That was too much for me—to be commanded in that tone of voice by a spoiled infant. So I told her that I thought I would stay where I was."

"She looked me up and down in silence for a moment. Her eyes rested on the red felt winter hat I was wearing."

"Say," she remarked in scornful tones, "that's a pretty warm lid you've got on. Can't you afford to buy a new one?"

"I nearly collapsed. Next day I bought this new lid. But I'd like to know what the children are coming to, anyway. They're getting worse instead of better."

Cured the Cold, But—

"Oh, I'm feeling much better, thank you," said the dignified and gray-haired matron in reply to her caller's inquiry.

"Those spring colds are horrible things to hang on, though, aren't they?"

"I thought I never would get rid of mine, and I guess I'd have it yet if it hadn't been for one of my neighbors. She's the sister of a doctor, you know, and she advised me what to do."

"There's nothing like quinine and rum," said she, "for a spring cold. You get some two-grain quinine capsules and a pint of good rum. Take a capsule and a swallow of rum every hour, and in twenty-four hours your cold will be broken up."

"So I asked my grocer if he wouldn't get me the rum, and told him to get the same kind I had used to turn the plum pudding Christmas."

"Haven't you had any since then?" he inquired.

"Why no," said I.

"Long time between drinks, ain't it?" he said, with a wink.

"Anyway, I got the rum and the quinine and I started early in the morning to take it as per schedule."

"Now if you ever had any rum in the house you know how pungent it is. If you just take the cork out of the bottle, the stuff is all through the house. And imagine me taking a swallow of it every hour! My breath was like a confirmed toper's."

"Worse than that, the combination began to get in its effect about noontime and I began to see two things when I knew there was only one. Goodness, but I felt funny!"

"And to cap the climax, about every good church member I knew took that particular afternoon to call on me. I must have a fearful reputation by this time."

"Oh, yes, it broke up the cold. But I'm lucky if my social standing isn't broken up, too. I can just hear the gossip talking!"

As he spoke his voice thrilled such passionateness that an iron statue of Hamlet melted on the mantle and streamed a molten mass to the floor.

"If you would do all that," she whispered, "perhaps for my sake you would do one little thing more."

"Yes," he answered passionately, "only, name what you would have me do, and I will do it, though all the world turn against me."

"Well then," she said, "just please remove your right knee from my left foot. My corns are aching horribly tonight."

You can make every loaf of bread you bake from Christian's Matchless Flour weigh an even pound.

Here is a recipe for users of Christian's Matchless Flour by a famous cooking expert:

- 1 yeast cake.
- 1 quart potato water.
- 1 tablespoon sugar.
- 2 tablespoons salt.
- 1 tablespoon lard.

Make a light sponge from the above and let it stand for several hours. Then put into bread mixer and use enough Christian's Matchless Flour to make a stiff dough, and turn the bread mixer for five minutes. Let this stand over night. Next morning knead it down. Cut into square loaves and bake in a moderate oven.

The woman who bakes bread for the neighbors will find that the use of Christian's Matchless Flour will increase the demand for her bread.

Satisfaction guaranteed in every sack.

No Matter What the Color of Your Hair
Newbro's Herpicide
Will Not Change It in the Least.

While they appreciate full well the value of a sanitary hair-dressing, many ladies are afraid to use one for fear it may alter the color of the hair. No such apprehension is associated with the use of Newbro's Herpicide.

It makes no difference whether your hair is blonde, brunette or otherwise. Herpicide will not streak, fade or alter it by a single shade. The clear, pure nature of the Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer appeals to everyone. It contains no grease and does not stain or soil the clothing. Herpicide is clean.

Used regularly Newbro's Herpicide will eradicate that most common as well as most annoying and distressing of all hair troubles, dandruff. Dandruff is caused by a germ or microbe which gradually forces its way down into the hair bulb or follicle. This gives rise to inflammation, manifested by an itchy scalp and the hair falls out. Herpicide kills the germ, cleans the scalp and prevents the hair from coming out. The itching stops almost instantly.

WELL-KNOWN LAWYER CURED OF ECZEMA

By Cuticura Remedies Which He Recommends for Skin Troubles.

"While attending school at Lebanon, Ohio, in 1902, there was a small-pox scare, and we were all vaccinated. Presumably from impure virus used, I became afflicted with boils, which lasted for about two years, when the affliction, assuming the form of an eczema on my face, the lower part of my face being inflamed most of the time. There would be water-blisters on the nose, and open, and wherever the water would touch it would burn, and cause another one to rise. After the blisters would open, the place would scab over, and would burn and itch so as to be almost unbearable at times. In this way the sores would spread from one place to another, back and forth over the whole of my upper lip and chin, and at times the whole lower part of my face would be a solid sore. This condition continued for four or five years, without getting any better, and in fact got worse all the time, so much so that my wife became alarmed lest it prove fatal."

"During all this time of boils and eczema, I doctored with the best physicians of this part of the country, but to no avail. Finally I decided to try Cuticura Remedies, which I did, taking the Cuticura Resolvent internally, applying the Cuticura Ointment to the sores, and using the Cuticura Soap for washing. In a very short time I began to notice improvement, and continued to use the Cuticura Remedies until within less than a year I was well again, and have not had a recurrence of the trouble since, which is over twenty years. I have recommended Cuticura Remedies to others ever since, and have great faith in them as remedies for skin diseases." (Signed) A. C. Hamilton, Attorney-at-Law, Greenville, O., Jan. 17, 1911.

Sold throughout the world. Send to Potter D. & C. Co., Dept. 3A, Boston, for free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

Difficult Mark.
A story that Lincoln used to enjoy telling is recalled by the Housekeeper. It is easy to imagine the maxims of homely philosophy that it could be used to illustrate. A certain old backwoodsman had very heavy, overhanging eyebrows, and wore big spectacles with brass rims. One day he came rushing into his cabin, and sitting his rifle, aimed it carefully through a crack of the door at a great cat-dog that stood near, and cried, "What is it?" whispered his wife. "A wildcat, Salty," he said, excitedly, "and I missed him!" He hastily loaded and fired again, and then again. "Now hold on, Joshua," said his good wife. "Let me look at you. Why, lawd-a-day, it's nothing but a little bug on one of your eyebrows!"

WEIRICK CASE WILL PROBABLY BE TRIED AT NOVEMBER TERM

District Attorney Will Prepare Complaint in Readiness for Next Jury Term of Circuit Court.

District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie stated today that the preliminary preparations for the suit of Rock county against former Register of Deeds C. H. Weirick for the amount of four retained by him during eight months of his term of office, would be started soon. The complaint will be filed sometime during the late spring or early summer and the case will come before Judge Graham in the circuit court for trial undoubtedly at the November term.

It would be impossible to secure a trial any earlier than the November term. The time is too short to get the suit on the May calendar which is not a jury term. Consequently the November term is the earliest date that the matter can be brought for trial.

The amount which Rock county claims is due from former Register of Deeds Weirick is $1,378.38 according to the report of the special investigating committee which reported at the April session of the board in 1911. This amount was the difference between the fees collected by Mr. Weirick for the eight months in question and the salary which the board maintains he should have received in lieu of the fees.

Mr. Weirick submitted at the session of the board a year ago his proposition for settlement. It amounted substantially to the payment to the county of $150, and the discharging the county from claim for damages by reason of the injunction suit against Weirick. At the November meeting of the board a communication was received from the Attorney for Mr. Weirick urging the county to accept the proposition previously made and advising that unless this was done, the offer would be withdrawn.

The grounds for Mr. Weirick's position as brought out in the discussion at the board meeting Thursday afternoon, involved a technicality in the procedure of the county board in changing from the fee to the salary system in the case of the Register of Deeds. In 1902 the board adopted the report of a special committee which recommended the change in question. It was not thought necessary at that time to pass a resolution providing that such a change should be made as it was understood that the adoption of the committee's report was enough. The board then fixed the salary of the Register of Deeds by a resolution. This was all the legislation on the part of the board in reference to the matter and the technicality of the omission of the resolution providing specifically for the change is stated to be the basis of Mr. Weirick's position. According to the decision of the supreme court in the Dano county case, as it was presented to the board, the intent of the board was the important thing in the consideration of the change of the Register of Deeds. It was evident that the board intended to make the change and the fact that some mistakes of a technical nature were made by the board does not alter the original intention on the part of the legislative body, and the court found against the former Register of Deeds of Dano county on that ground, according to the exposition made by Supervisors Gettle and Richardson.

BABY CHICKS NEED CAREFUL ATTENTION THROUGHOUT SPRING

Some Good Advice Regarding Care of Flock and How to Cope With Numerous Perils.

A baby chick is a possibility. If neglected it will never see the end of its first year, but given the right care it may win the blue at the largest show in the world. Without a doubt the winning White Wyandotte, Orpington or Rhode Island Red cockerel at the next Chicago show to be held in December is nothing but a baby chick not over three or four months old at this time.

April is the month in which most of the baby chicks are hatched at the large poultry plants in this country. March has gone by and the incubators have been very busy during that time and now the care of the chicks is before us. If you think the hatching of the chick is the hard part of the business change your mind, for the most class of work to be done by the poultryman is the raising of that bird. It is not a hard matter to get the chick to hatch but it is a very difficult task to raise them successfully.

From now on we must look out for those things which will take off the chicks. There are certain perils that are bound to come unless we are on the lookout all the while. The man who knows there is danger ahead looks forward and thus avoids it. There is danger ahead in the poultry raising and all who are going to raise birds this spring must look ahead and avoid those things which will be of harm to him if they get a start.

One of the essential things for the young chick is comfortable quarters at all times. Of course the chick is not in the quarters so much during the day time but at night these quarters must be right. If he has a night of unrest he is not fit for the next day's growth. Many times you will notice the chicks nodding and drooping around and in many cases this can be traced to the fact that it did not have enough rest the night before. It is with chickens as it is with people. If we do not rest comfortably it makes us feel tired the next day and we are not fit for our work. Be careful of extremes of temperature for that is a means of doing much damage. Keep careful watch of the brooders and keep them and do not let the chicks get too hot or too chilly. Have their night quarters correct in temperature and so well protected that the winds cannot injure them and so that nothing can get in and molest them. See to it that the quarters are free from mice and that no lice are allowed to exist.

Do not crowd your chicks. If you do wish to get too many chicks into a small space you will find that nature will step in and lesson your flock until just enough birds are left to fill the space you have provided for them. Crowding kills more chicks each year than most any other cause. Visit the sleeping quarters each night before you go to bed and see that the chicks are comfortable. You will find them piled up sometimes and unless you wish to throw out a number of dead chickens in the morning amble them. Give the chick plenty of room to move about in and supply fresh air at all times.

Too much kindness toward your fowls will be the means of producing bad results. Leg weakness is one of the results of this. It will appear when the chick is about three weeks old. Bad care and bad nourishment have been given before this time and now you must remedy your kindness. Too little home building feed and too much fat and flesh producing ration will cause this. Do not feed a rich and condensed feed in an open dish and do not feed other thin things with it for if you do you are not feeding a balanced ration. Of course the chicks will grow very fast on that rich diet but about the third week the feed will become too heavy and the chick will become weak in its legs. Then the damage is done and it is rather late to try and remedy it. Better avoid it from the start than to allow it to get a start at all.

Bowel trouble the scourge of the chicken yard is one of the worst perils you will have to contend with in the raising of your chicks. Too early feeding and too much are two causes of this disease. Then do not feed wet feeds any more than you have to and my advice is not to feed the feed wet at all. It will have a tendency to become aured and that will be the start of a peril that you cannot check. If birds are affected be sure to clean up the quarters and disinfect at once.

As soon as the chicks are a day or two old grease the top of their head with some ointment that is prepared for that purpose or use common lard and a little kerosene mixed. This will rid them of the head lice. Then dust the chicks with some good powder and as soon as the chicks are from four to five weeks old give them a slight dusting with the powder, but be careful that it is not a strong powder.

There are other things which will have a tendency to reduce the flock among which are cats, rats, accumulation of filth, lack of green food, lack of grit, rain storms, and the like. These are general considerations. Each one must take his own method of overcoming them but they must be overcome. Those who raise nice flocks never take it for granted that the old hen will take care of her flock or that the hen in the brooder is all right. He is always watching the flocks and takes no chances. He anticipates the dangers and avoids them. He appreciates that takes a great deal of skill and carefully tested information to raise fowls. "Constant daily care intelligently directed is what makes good in this business."

MISS LATHROP'S LECTURE IS FREE TO THE PUBLIC

The lecture on Woman's Suffrage at the Presbyterian Church, Monday evening, April 22, by Miss Julia C. Lathrop, is free to the public.

The importance of this subject to the voters of Wisconsin is apparent when we consider its relation to the November election. The most of Janesville especially will be interested in hearing as able and interesting a speaker as Miss Lathrop, who has a national reputation as a speaker and lecturer.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING.

Coal stoves are to be removed from the street cars at Appleton and will be supplied by electric heaters. Twenty-two will be installed in each car which it is expected will not only supply more uniform heat, but will be out of the way and more satisfactory in general. The cost of operation is said to be less especially when the cost of carrying the 1,300 pounds that compromises a coal heating system is taken into consideration. When the cumbersome stoves are removed, each of the big cars will accommodate one more seat for passengers than at present.

Molasses For Dust Laying.
Washington, D. C.—The bureau of roads is making experiments with a very cheap grade of molasses, mixed with lime water, as a dust-laying cover for roads. Logan W. Page, director of the bureau, said that in the beet sugar country the cheap "black strap" molasses, now destroyed as of no value, might be used in this road work. The bureau is testing various kinds of surface and under-surface materials on stretches of suburban roads.

Clean City Wards.
Toledo, O.—Instead of single clean-up day the Civic Federation have decided to clean the city by wards, dedicating a day to each ward in the city. The start was made April 1, when the first ward received the attention of the cleaners, and the campaign will continue until the fifteen wards are free from rubbish. Edward P. Hubbell and a number of assistants will have charge.

New Pavement For Green Day.
Green Day has let contracts to the White Construction Company of Milwaukee for 35,432 square yards of asphalt pavement, at about $70,000 and for macadam pavement on Crooks Street, for $12,500.

To Install New Pump.
The city of Wauwatosa has received bids for the installation of a new pump for its waterworks. The Water Commission recommends the purchase of a Snow pump with a capacity of six million gallons, costing $14,180.

Conduct Medical Inspection.
In order to prevent the spread of an epidemic of scarlet fever a daily inspection of all pupils in the public schools has been conducted. This would prevent a case from exposing the students of an entire room. The epidemic is reported to be slowly subsiding.

New Post Office Building.
The new post office building at Stevens Point will be opened for business July 1. The structure has been erected at a cost of $65,000 and is an exceptionally handsome building.

Potatoes On City Lots.
Vacant city lots in Ashland will be utilized by school children this year for the cultivation of potatoes. It is expected a sufficient supply will be raised to supply the local markets.

Receive Inspector's Equipment.
The Fond du Lac Sealer of Weights and Measures has received a complete outfit for carrying on his inspections. The outfit consists of standard weights, metallic measures of various sizes and inaccurate scales.

After Tuberculosis Sanitarium.
The city of Hortonville is making vigorous efforts to secure a tuberculosis sanitarium in the county. A site in the county or some other locality in the county offers a site, the appropriation of $2,000 voted by the county board for the erection of the necessary buildings will be returned.

May Change City Hall Plans.
Wausau may change the original plans for its proposed city hall to permit the substitution of Marathon county granite for Bedford stone.

Our Neighbors.
She was a rather plump old lady, and had always tried to be accommodating to her neighbors; but even her obliging spirit had to refuse a request from a neighbor who sent by her little boy the following message: "Please, ma'am, mother sent me over to see if I couldn't get a couple of pounds of lard off of you."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

DARWIN.

By Howard L. Rann.

Thirty years ago today Charles Robert Darwin, the eminent English scientist, departed his life at the age of 74 years. He before he departed, however, he started a train of melancholy reflections by declaring, in a chatty treatise of several thousand words, no two of which were ever used before that man is a lineal descendant of the aboriginal ape. Darwin's discovery did not tend to popularize him to any great extent, and when he died no mention was made of the floral offerings. Also a great many people who had been digging around the roots of the family tree, in the effort to locate some of their ancestors, lost interest in the search and secreted the family photograph album. Darwin's biographer states that he was reluctant to make a monkey out of man, as he had some relatives who did not care to be used as exhibits, but the path of duty lay plain before him. Darwin's theory is that man sprang from the gelatinized pollywog and that it was 12,000,000 years before he sprouted the classic features of the orang-outang. This theory has put quite a dent in the enthusiasm of the people who try to trace a lineal ancestry back to the fall of Adam and Gomorrah. It is a very annoying thing to find out a genealogical survey and have it end up in a banana-forest, close to the haunts of the ring-tailed gorilla. It must have been a pleasing sight to see Darwin in front of the monkey cage at the London Zoo, discussing the origin of man with the chimpanzee and feeding salted peanuts to his offspring. Darwin often said that the only difference he could see between man and the monkey is that the monkey parts his hair on one side and prefers the pipe to the cigarette. This was a very coarse generalization and did not help the sale of Darwin's books any, as it touched family pride in a sore spot.

Patents to Inventors.

Method of Modern Physician.

A famous physician who was particularly expeditious in examining and prescribing for his patients was waited on by an army man, who was polished off in almost less than no time. As the patient was leaving he shook hands heartily with the doctor and said: "I am especially glad to meet you, as I have often heard my father, Colonel P., speak of you." "What?" exclaimed the physician, "are you Dick's son?" "Certainly." "My dear fellow," said the doctor, "filing that infernal prescription in the fire and sit down and tell me what is the matter with you."

Conversational Strategy.

"I observe that you never contradict any theory that Mr. Heftybrance advances." "Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "he's likely to get through talking much sooner if you don't break in and suggest new topics."

What is a Municipal Bond?

Do you know that the U. S. Government accepts nothing but bonds as security for money loaned by its Postal Savings Banks?

THE Government considers Government, State, and Municipal Bonds the absolutely safe securities for money.

Our bonds are Municipal Bonds and are eligible for deposit with Postal Savings Banks. These Bonds pay 5% and 5 1/4% interest.

A Municipal Bond is in effect a Mortgage on all the public property, and all the private property, on the Honor and Integrity, and on the Taxes of a City or Town or County.

A Municipal Bond is an irrevocable claim upon the Taxes of a community, and holds the taxes for the payment of its interest each six months, and for the payment of its principal when due.

A Municipal Bond Actually is Taxes

You want to understand investments that are sure, as a Government Bond, and yet pay 5% and 5 1/4% interest. (Interest paid each six months.)

You want to know why certain Municipal Bonds are ranked by the Government as safe as Government Bonds.

You want to understand the form of investment which has returned such great profits to banks and to individual financiers.

We have these bonds in different amounts from $100 up. You can own a $100 bond, or you can own many $1000 bonds.

Whether or not you are ready just now to place any money on interest, you will appreciate reading our booklet which explains Municipal Bonds—not in technical language, but in every-day English. Your boy will be able to read the booklet and understand it as thoroughly as yourself. Your wife and daughter will read it and be guarded from possible future money losses.

We present the booklet to you with a pleasure in knowing it will be of much service to you, both in placing your own funds, and in advising others. Send for a booklet today.

Children Should Develop Naturally

If their food is right.

When a child is pale and delicate, or is backward in his studies, the reason is often found to be that his food does not contain the elements required to properly nourish the fast growing body and rapidly developing brain.

Grape-Nuts

supplies nutrition for both body and brain in appetizing, easily-digested form.

It is pure, wholesome and nourishing. Children like its delicate, sweet flavour and thrive wonderfully upon it.

PLAYGROUND NEED OF JANESVILLE CHILDREN

EXAMINATION OF PROVISIONS MADE ELSEWHERE INDICATE CITY IS BACKWARD.

LOCAL POSSIBILITIES

Vacant Lots For Purpose Easily Secured.—Cost of Apparatus And Maintenance Reasonable.

If there is any one subject for which the people of Janesville will make common cause, it is the safeguarding and cultivation of the bodies, and minds, and morals of their children. They may, through want of knowledge of their needs, or the dangers that confront them, be slow in coming to a decision that corrective action is needed, but this move, action will follow promptly and certainly.

It is with this well-founded confidence in the people of Janesville, together with a growing realization of the city's needs, that a number of its citizens are soliciting support for the establishment of a children's playground.

No argument would be needed to prove the necessity or value of a play-

Health Argument.

But there are other arguments, equally cogent, for the support of playgrounds. We of today must do something for the benefit of those who will live here sixty years and more from now, as well as for our own good. This generation and the one that preceded it have been living more and more on the energy stored up by grandfathers and great-grandfathers and mothers. Unless we look out for our physical selves and especially insure that the children of today do so, our grand-children and great-grandchildren will be physically bankrupt. It is generally agreed that there is no more effective way to fight tuberculosis than by making it possible for people to spend their leisure hours in happy, vigorous exercise out-of-doors. Who is going to estimate the money-value of healthy, robust and training without wasting it, who become strong men and women instead of invalids, who become producers instead of drainers?

Beginning of Movement.

The beginning of the present movement that has brought into being in America the playground dates from inspiration that came from Germany to Boston in the late 'eighties. As a result, sand gardens were established for small children in three localities, the number increased many times in the succeeding years. Philadelphia and New York then took up the idea and were followed by other cities. The next step of lasting nature was the establishment of fully equipped playgrounds, the first being the Charlesbank outdoor gymnasium in Boston, opened in 1889.

Weather and Indoors in the Library on stormy days.

Aquatic activities where the playground borders on water.

Local Adaptations.

This program, though apparently far too elaborate to be taken up in a newly established playground, say in Janesville, gives a good idea of the possibilities of such a place, and as for supervision, that for the initial season at least could be obtained from competent volunteers or officers or appointees of a Playground Association. The boy scouts would undoubtedly be glad to take turns in supervising the use of the apparatus, seeing that the children take their turns at it, and that the holder and the stranger do not deprive the weak and timid children of their right to its use.

Playground Equipment.

Playground equipment may be secured for a great variety of purposes and for prices ranging from the meagre sum of $50 for a few pieces sufficient for several hundred children to the limit of one of the Chicago South Park playgrounds where all the necessary apparatus and equipment for men, women and children was installed at approximately $1,000, two-thirds to three-quarters of this expense being for pipe frames which can generally be built locally, following the specifications of those who supply the equipment. Roughly speaking it is possible to equip satisfactorily an average playground and outdoor gymnasium with material for all necessary work, using manufacturers' goods, for from $500 to $1,000. Equipment manufacturing concerns are all glad to furnish estimates.

one hundred and seventy-seven in 1908; to three hundred and thirty-six in 1909, and June, 1910, one hundred ninety-seven cities were conducting playground campaigns. Forty cities have reported supervised playgrounds opened for the first time during the year ending November 1, 1911. Most of the playgrounds in the early days were started under private auspices. Last year more than sixty-two per cent of the playgrounds reported were supported wholly or in part by municipal funds; one hundred and fifteen cities have playground associations, an increase of about fifty per cent in a single year; thirty-seven cities have playground or recreation commissions, and twenty-three have both commissions and associations. Among important items of progress we note that on June 3, 1911, an act of the Pennsylvania legislature was approved, providing for the creation of recreation departments in all cities of the first class, and the New York legislature has recently passed such a law providing for the creation of a recreation commission for the City of New York. Columbus, Ohio, has already such a commission created by ordinance; St. Louis, also, while Boston works upon the same plan. Within the last decade there has been expended by the various municipalities of this country alone in extending this work over $60,000,000.

FOND DU LAC WATER USERS PROTEST INCREASED RATES

Service Charge Substituted For Meter Rent—Mayor Wolff Claims Cost Not Changed.

Fond du Lac water users are protesting against the apparent increase in the cost of water service as indicated by their last month's water bills. This is due to the service charge, which it is explained is a constant amount on the place of the water rent and is said to have been made necessary by the suggestion of the state rate commission. It is supposed to cover the expense of reading the meters, keeping them in repair and making out the bills. The charge for the 64-inch meter is 75 cents for three months, for a 4-inch meter 50 cents, for three months and for a 1-inch meter $1 for three months.

It was thought by many consumers that the service charge made the use of water more expensive than under the meter rent plan, it being claimed that for a 5 1/2 inch meter the rent had been 12 1/2 cents for one month whereas under the service charge plan it is 25 cents a month or double the old amount.

Mayor Frank J. Wolff, a member of the water commission, when asked if it was true that the expense, so far as this item is concerned, was not doubled, declared that the lowering of the water rate 20 per cent made the cost of the water, including the service charge just about the same as it was before.

TRINITY CHURCH MEMBERS ENJOY SOCIAL GATHERING.

Parish Supper Followed by a Program Was Given at Guild Hall on Thursday Evening.

Members of Trinity church enjoyed a supper and social gathering at the church guild hall on Thursday evening. There was a large number present to join in the festivities and after supper was served the following excellent program was presented: Piano Solo Miss Blanche Connell Contralto Solo .. Not a Square Deal.

The sound of laughter and crying came from upstairs. "Silence!" roared the father sternly. But still the din went on. Then the father strode angrily to the bedroom door. "What are you young imps making all this noise about?" he demanded. "Oh, please, nothing," replied one of the twins. "Only nurse has given Alexander two baths and hasn't given me one." Father couldn't help smiling.—Ideas.

ground. Mere observation, even though casual, must have brought home to mothers and fathers the growing restrictions on their children's liberties to play. Danger from swiftly passing street cars and automobiles bars the streets as a playground. "Keep off the grass" and "No 'Tree-passing'" signs were then off vacant lots and many public parks. It would seem as if urban communities had deliberately decided to ignore the right and need of its future citizens to health-bringing, body-developing play.

Influence For Morality. Play is the natural expression of a child. It is primarily the child's birthright, the inheritance it should never have lost. As one investigator says: "The death knell has sounded for the country when its children have forgotten how to play." Cities must provide artificial playgrounds to give to the children rights taken from them by modern municipal conditions. A city that does not provide suitable places for its citizens and coming citizens to care for their physical selves will be called upon to provide additional police stations, jails, and hospitals, and prevention is very much cheaper than cure, both for the patient and the doctor.

The forbidding alternative just stated is not loose statement or a vaporing of imagination, but is agreed to by authorities of the highest rank. Scientific study of juvenile delinquency

The enlightened present day conception does not accept as a proper playground one in which there is no supervision or systematic work. Just a place, just a lot of land will not answer the requirements. Says Everett H. Hill, author of "American Playgrounds": "There is play and there is play. There is play that grows like a weed and never gets beyond the weed state; and there is play that has careful cultivation so that it becomes a useful plant. The latter kind is required to accomplish results worthy of effort expended."

"On the undirected playground the play is uncontrolled and the vicious habits of the street simply transferred. The bully element is in evidence, and the young and the weak are crowded out. A crowd of adult loafers often drive the boys from the ball diamond and use it for themselves."

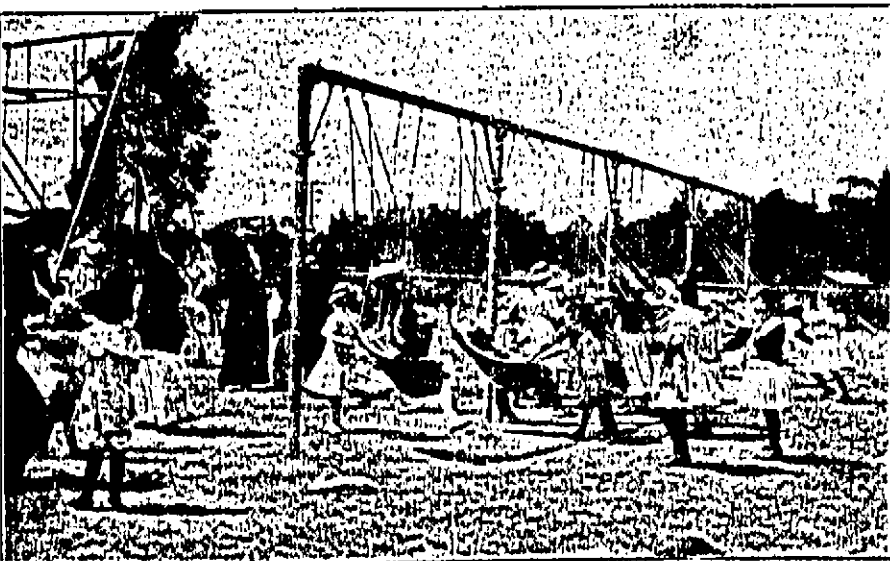

"These conditions do not exist on the directed playground. The director interests himself in every child, weak or strong, good or bad. Smoking, gambling and profanity are forbidden, and the boy develops under conditions that are more conducive to his moral and physical welfare."

"The supervisor or director should come as soon, or even before the plant. It is a radical mistake to wait until a playground is built and equipped before having a director. The di-

Among the equipment usually to be found in a properly equipped playground are horizontal bars, parallel bars, swing frames and swings, seesaws, sand-boxes, basketball goals, slides, merry-go-round, circle bar, trick rings flying rings, ladders sliding pole, giant stride, not to forget pads and shovels for the little tots.

Cost of Maintenance. Exhaustive statistics on the cost of maintaining playgrounds are not at hand, but the few examined are encouraging. In Providence, Rhode Island, the cost of maintaining the playgrounds was about $3,000 per annum, or less than four cents a child. In Philadelphia the cost per child has been estimated at a trifle less than four cents per child a playground day.

Local Situation. The playground problem in Janesville at the present time resolves itself into the raising of funds for the purchase of equipment and maintenance. Assurances have been given that there are a number of large vacant lots or groups of lots, conveniently situated that can be rented or leased for playground purposes. Ultimately it is expected Janesville will follow the lead of other progressive municipalities and buy land for that purpose, but for the present that is not an issue. As has been the case in other cities the playground movement will have to be launched under private auspices, though for public in Chicago has shown that the recreation centers are one of the most powerful agents for reducing juvenile crime by giving an outlet for juvenile energy. One authority writes:

Source of Lawlessness.

"As has so often been said, most boys who break laws, who stone the neighbors' cats, who see how few whole pines of glass they can leave in an untold factory building, whose idea of manliness is associated with the corner tough who once 'licked the gamest cop on the force,' these authorities are usually less to blame than are the authorities who provide no outlet for natural strenuousness, but instead attempt to bottle up the energy. As well to drown the cover of a tank full of boiling drink and not expect an explosion. "Give the boy a chance at football, basketball, hockey, or the 'game,' give him an opportunity to perform difficult and dangerous feats on a horizontal bar, on the flying rings, or from the diving board and the policeman will need a gymnasium himself to keep his weight down. This is not theory but testimony you will get from any policeman or schoolmaster who has been in the neighborhood before and after a playground was started there."

rector should be on the job from the very start."

Playground Activities.

Before the subject is developed further, many readers will have asked, What are the playground activities, and with what are they equipped? Merely illustrative answers can be made. Briefly enumerated, the activities of a properly equipped playground are:

Rougher games and employment for the smaller children:

Sand boxes and sand gardens for the very small children of both sexes;

Non-competitive athletics in which all may compete;

Competitive athletics for all who are qualified;

Games and play for everyone;

Gymnastics or physical training of more or less informal and interesting nature, in classes with or without apparatus;

Bandaging of the type used in gymnastics and playgrounds;

Industrial work which may include manual training where there are facilities for it;

Quiet hour for story-telling in good purposes, and the formation of a Playground Association, membership being given to donors, would facilitate its progress. The Gazette some time ago offered to head a subscription list for the purchase of playground apparatus with $50. That offer still holds good and The Gazette stands ready to announce in its columns the subscriptions of any other public spirited citizen for this purpose, as well as to give the movement every advantage of publicity.

What Other Cities Have Done.

In order to give its readers some idea of the scope and extent of the playground movement, The Gazette publishes the following "Statistics of Progress," taken from an article entitled "The Playground Movement in America," by Herbert H. Wolf, in the March number of "The American City."

"The few statistics following will indicate very clearly the marvelous growth: "Before 1906 there were but forty-one communities that had supervised playgrounds; there were but eight playground associations and no state had playground legislation. The number of cities maintaining playgrounds grew from ninety in 1907 to

This Car Costs $1500 What More Will $1800 Get You?

You must judge values by comparing values. A dollar article from one man is worth only one dollar from another—not a dollar and a half. Smith, who pays a higher rent, operates extravagantly, and does little business, must take care of his "overheads" by inflating values. Therefore, he lacks an extra ten to twenty per cent, on everything he sells. But Jones, who sells the same goods, but sells more of them, and does not have the additional rents and numerous other overhead charges to take care of, sells you his standard goods minus this ten to twenty per cent inflation. Jones is the man to deal with.

Apply this to automobiles.

The car shown here is our famous forty-five horsepower touring car. It is priced at $1500. This car has everything of any practical value that any $1800 or $2000 car in America has.

Do you question this?

Then run over these facts:—

First of all, this car has a powerful forty-five horsepower motor. It seats five large passengers. The operating levers are in the center—where they should be. The selective transmission is fitted with the finest F & S molar bearings—the best made. It has a full floating rear axle. Both front and rear axles are fitted with the famous Timken bearings. The pressed steel frame has a double drop. The magneto is a Bosch. The tires are big. The body is finished in deep rich Brewster green trimmed with heavy nickel plate. The lamps are dead black trimmed with nickel. Self-starter only $20 extra.

It is a magnificent, strong, powerful car. It has all the beauty and comfort that is possible to get in a popular priced car. You cannot find a weakness or a flaw. It is sound and thorough. Neither the chassis nor body could be improved upon. It is made of the best material on the market by the most modern methods.

Can you pick any $1800 or $2000 car that gives you more than this? To be sure, you might get a few inches longer wheel base, or a little larger wheels, but what does that amount to? And at that, you will find the car with a little larger wheel base has a much smaller motor. For all of which you are asked to pay anywhere from $300 to $500 extra.

We repeat, there is not an $1800 car made that offers you any more than this one for $1500.

Why?

It is made by the largest factory in the world. These enormous plants, by reason of their huge operations, can buy material, handle material, make parts, and sell cars at smaller costs than anybody else in the business. We make 25,000 cars a year. The average standard plant turns out about 5000. That's the difference.

Right now we are shipping eighty cars a day. In round figures this is a business of about $72,000,00 a day. In a short time we will be shipping 150 cars a day. This is a business of $135,000,00 a day. Would these thousands and thousands of shrewd people select the Overland in preference to all others if we did not give them more car and a better car for less money?

There are over 2000 Overland dealers.

Let our dealer in this city (name and address below) take you out in this car and give you a thorough demonstration. Let him show you the unusual value. (See this car, then see some of the higher priced cars. This will prove to your own satisfaction that our $1500 car will give you all the power, speed, comfort, service and wear that you can get in any $1800 car made.

Phone our dealer for a demonstration at once.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

I've been sewing divers patches on my Sunday pantaloons; I've been holding burning matches trying to locate the prism; I am weary now of eating cold potatoes and such grub while my wife is at a meeting of the steenth ward tariff club. I am sitting in the cellar where I fell an hour ago, and I have a broken smeller and my heart is full of woe. Oh, my soul is sore with friction as I sit upon a tub, and I call down malediction on the steenth ward tariff club. To old days surcharged with beauty, my sad recollection room, when a woman thought her beauty was to navigate a home; when she used to cook the mutton for her tired and teller's hub, and she didn't care a button for the steenth ward tariff club. Now her sitting room's forsaken, from her bower she's gone away; she has quit the eggs and bacon and she talks of Schiele K. And the clothingline now is sagging where the rugs she used to drape, and her threefold torments is wagging at the steenth ward tariff club. Often I have sadly pondered on the future, for, (ack!) all my shirts are now unlaundered and my coat's split up the back; there is none to do my sewing, there is none to cook or scrub, for the women all are going to the steenth ward tariff club.

Described. "What sort of man is Jipson?" "Impossible," I fear." "What do you mean by that?" "Well, he's the kind of man who would make an ideal admiral in the Swiss navy." Their Use. "What is the object of repeating rifles?" "Of course, to make every shot tell."

Chinese Vaccination. A form of vaccination against smallpox has been practiced by the Chinese since ancient times.

Almost a Miracle. One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It was lucky for Father that he wasn't playing Pinochle.

ALTERED THE CASE.

During his last visit to this country Henri Renaud, for so many years our secretary of embassy at Paris, told a story of one Renaud who came to Paris as senator from a district in the Pyrenees.

Renaud engaged a room at a hotel in Paris and paid a month's rent—200 francs—in advance. The proprietor asked him whether he would take a receipt.

"A receipt is unnecessary," said Renaud. "God has witnessed the payment."

"Do you believe in God?" sneered the host.

"Most assuredly," replied Renaud.

"Don't you?"

"Not I, monsieur."

"Ah," said Renaud, "in that case please make me out a receipt!"—Lip-pincott's.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to house-keeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not get to sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health."

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. BENJ. H. STANBURY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

DOUBLY PROVEN.

Janeville Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Janeville citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 118 Terrace St., Janeville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for ten or twelve years. My kidneys became sluggish and their failure to do their work properly caused me to become weak and helpless. The kidney secretions were very unnatural and often my joints were sore and swollen. I had almost given up hope of getting relief when I had the good fortune to hear of Don's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., and they soon restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I advise other kidney sufferers to try this remedy." (Statement given in August, 1908.)

CONFIRMED PROOF.

Mrs. Johnson was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she added to the above: "I take pleasure in again recommending Don's Kidney Pills and advising their use in all cases of kidney trouble. I am still free from kidney complaint and my back does not bother me to any extent."

The DIAMOND CIPHER

A Baseball Romance

By W. A. PHILON

(Copyright, 1912, by W. A. Philon. Published by The Diamond Cipher Co., Chicago, Ill.)

"Bartley, you was mistook. I von coming from de washroom, von de train it lurch and upset me from me balance. I datte hold off de bert to steady myself, and dot was all. Von right hat you to insult a respectable draftee in dis way?"

"The negro was not to be blamed. 'Ah, now yo' rummaging' round in dat berth fo' five minutes befo' Ah stopped yo', an' yo' never needed no such time as dat jest fo' to get yo' balance. Oh, deie yo' is, suh. Is dehe anything missing from yo' berth, suh?"

Solano rapidly inspected his clothing. "Two pockets turned inside out," he announced, "but nothing taken. You've got a cheap railway thief there, George. Hold him tight, and the car company won't forget you."

Brockett, descending lightly from his berth, peered into the face of the pajama-clad captive.

"Glad to see you, sir," laughed the boy, exultingly. "We met in Washington only the other day, if I am not mistaken."

With a guttural roar of rage and chagrin, the baron broke from the negro's hands and rushed down the car. He gained the vestibule platform before another clutch could be laid upon him and smashed a door.

"With a guttural roar of rage the baron broke from the porter's hands."

and watchful individuals, and every bulky German, every passing Japanese or Chinaman, loomed large as a possible emissary of the foe.

Marching majestically amid the throng, and towering above them like Gulliver among the Lilliputians, a gigantic negro came up the street. The black man must have been seven feet high, and was garbed in a scarlet coat, blue trousers, and silk hat.

With either hand he dealt out the advertising cards of some dentist, and kept a continual stream of pasteboards flying through the crowd. The boys sidestepped to let the giant pass, but the mammoth negro checked his course for the fraction of a second and thrust a couple of his cards into Brockett's astonished hands. Resuming his march, he paraded up the street, with a mob of small boys stringing in his wake, turned a corner and disappeared with his attendant train.

"Some advertising agent, that boy," laughed Brockett. "Wonder who hires him, anyhow?"

One of the cards bore the name of some "dental parlor." Across the other, in small but clearly written letters, were these hieroglyphs:

"H I R E L T O W F I R T O H I T T O E L P O T C U S I S."

"Instructions at Chicago," Brockett translated. "Say—let's catch that black man and ask him where he got this card."

They hurried to the cross-street where the negro had changed his course, but the gigantic African was nowhere visible.

When they boarded the Chicago-bound train that night, Solano's restless brain hatched a new idea.

"It occurs to me, Harry," he ventured, "that anyone who is tracking us on sleeping cars will naturally prove into the lower berth. Why not frame up a dummy, leave him in the lower, and both of us climb into the upper? Then we can take turns watching, and ought to come pretty near to luring any inquisitive gentleman who gets his locations mixed."

The idea appealed to Brockett, and was quickly carried through. It was by no means difficult to construct a fair imitation of a sleeper in the lower berth, simply by rolling up the blankets, rumpiling the pillows, and arranging a few articles of clothing 'round the bunk. When the work was finished, and the electric light turned off, the life-like effect was wholly satisfying, and the boys could hardly restrain their laughter as they climbed

CHAPTER XIV.

Detroit—home of automobiles and Ty Cobb—is a pretty place. It was vastly appreciated by the boys, both for its natural beauty and the fact that they encountered Cobb on Monroe avenue. Tyrus, who had met Brockett some months before in Washington, was not only affable, but anxious to go out of his way to guide the youngsters round the burg. Solano, like many others who had never made the acquaintance of the Georgia Peach, had always believed him a swell-headed, inflated, disagreeable character, and was amazed to find him a splendid young fellow, gentlemanly and entertaining. After Cobb had left them the Cuban shook his head in a bewildered fashion.

"Finding out my mistake about Ty Cobb," he explained, "was some jolt, believe me. I'll not be surprised to discover, after that enlightenment, that Baron Zollern is our dearest friend and that Mr. Yazimoto would just die to make us happy."

"They don't grow any nicer than Cobb," said Brockett. "He is pretty nearly the best ever."

Naturally, the messengers went to see Cobb perform that afternoon, after securing tickets and berths on a Chicago train. The great Georgian was at his best, giving a wonderful display of his speed and matchless hitting powers. After seeing him turn an ordinary single into three bases by nifty running, the boys left the ball yard, garrulous as monkeys, wildly delighted at the doings of Ty Cobb, but not forgetting the dangers and demands of their situation. Nobody bothered them at the game; no spies or shadows seemed to be on the trail as they walked from the park, and there appeared to be no reason for special caution. Much adventure and many unpleasant happenings, however, had converted the youngsters into thoroughly suspicious

CHAPTER XV.

"These sleeping car adventures," complained Ramon Solano, as they disembarked at the Chicago station, "are somewhat wearing to the nerves. I suggest, after this, that we either walk or sit up in the day coach. Three strikes and out, you know. Twice we have been extremely lucky in Pullman car happenings—the third time may be bad for both of us."

"I agree with you," assented Brockett. "We can figure out ways and means of transportation, though, after we get through with our mission. I wouldn't mind going back by sea, if such a trip is possible. You have a pocket atlas, haven't you? Yes? Then we can map out a sea voyage to divert ourselves during the afternoon."

"Your cipher," said Solano, thoughtfully, "notified you that you would receive orders in Chicago, didn't it?"

"Yes, so I understood."

"How will any orders be given us? Where would we go to meet any message-bringer? How does any government agent know where to locate us?"

Brockett shook his head. "All way past my understanding, Ramon. All I know is that we are supposed to receive orders here—somebody, somehow, will hand them to us before we leave Chicago. I am as certain of that as I am of—of—well, of eating breakfast this morning. Remember how we were given the card in Detroit? Some one will pass the newest orders to us, and do it just as queerly."

"One thing sure, my boy," remarked Solano, "we will have to wait around Chicago till such time as orders reach us. We can't proceed, helter-skelter, slipshod, taking long chances, and start for Mexico this afternoon. No chance to migrate till we have the word."

"Quite correct. Still, I think the next cipher message won't be long delayed. It will be in our hands within a very few hours. While waiting, we can see the town, and incidentally keep a sharp watch for our Filipino friend."

The boys were more worried than either of them would admit. Neither had counted the vicious little Filipino, Aguilar, as an active factor in the situation. They were fairly well prepared to deal with the wily Japanese emissary, Yazimoto, or with the burly, hot-tempered German, Baron Zollern, but neither had for a minute made any calculation involving the brown fellow from Luzon. The affair in the sleeper, when the dummy arranged by Brockett had been stabbed with Aguilar's keen-bladed knife, was like a bombshell to them, and their worries were intensified by the fact that no trace of the would-be murderer could be found. Nobody even resembling the little Filipino had left the train in the morning—the boys had scrutinized every outgoing passenger—and the porter and conductor asserted that no one even of a brown complexion had been aboard that train as far as they were aware. "Fore Gaud, gentlemen," protested the porter, "if any dark-skinned person had got into dis heah cab, Ah'd have sized him up fo' nether nigger, an' Ah'd suthin' much remember any nigger dat had de nerve to ride in a Pullman."

Was Aguilar in the employ of Yazimoto, with whom he had been closely connected back in Washington? Was he now an emissary of Baron Zollern?

like Alpine chamois into the mountainous regions above. Brockett took the first watch—and nothing happened to disturb the tranquillity of the car except a wrangle between two claimants of lower seven, each, through some mistake, holding the proper coupon.

Solano was on guard, and Brockett was peacefully dreaming, when the green curtains were slightly agitated. The Cuban stretched himself towards the edge of the berth and peered downward. Nothing visible. If anyone had been trying to rummage in the lower berth, he had fled with snake-like silence and lightning speed. Solano, deciding that he had been in error, drew back, and waited out his watch without further incident.

With the first rays of sunlight, both boys were astir. Slipping down into the aisle without waiting for the porter's ladder, they looked into the lower berth. Something was jutting out from the blanket-roll that had simulated a peaceful sleeper—a black handle, from which fluttered a tiny bit of paper. Brockett seized the handle, and drew forth a vicious knife, with a strangely modeled, almost half-moon blade.

"A Filipino knife," exclaimed Solano. "Spanish writing on the paper. Let me see. 'With the compliments of Aguilar!'"

"Yes, so I understood."

"How will any orders be given us? Where would we go to meet any message-bringer? How does any government agent know where to locate us?"

Brockett shook his head. "All way past my understanding, Ramon. All I know is that we are supposed to receive orders here—somebody, somehow, will hand them to us before we leave Chicago. I am as certain of that as I am of—of—well, of eating breakfast this morning. Remember how we were given the card in Detroit? Some one will pass the newest orders to us, and do it just as queerly."

"One thing sure, my boy," remarked Solano, "we will have to wait around Chicago till such time as orders reach us. We can't proceed, helter-skelter, slipshod, taking long chances, and start for Mexico this afternoon. No chance to migrate till we have the word."

"Quite correct. Still, I think the next cipher message won't be long delayed. It will be in our hands within a very few hours. While waiting, we can see the town, and incidentally keep a sharp watch for our Filipino friend."

The boys were more worried than either of them would admit. Neither had counted the vicious little Filipino, Aguilar, as an active factor in the situation. They were fairly well prepared to deal with the wily Japanese emissary, Yazimoto, or with the burly, hot-tempered German, Baron Zollern, but neither had for a minute made any calculation involving the brown fellow from Luzon. The affair in the sleeper, when the dummy arranged by Brockett had been stabbed with Aguilar's keen-bladed knife, was like a bombshell to them, and their worries were intensified by the fact that no trace of the would-be murderer could be found. Nobody even resembling the little Filipino had left the train in the morning—the boys had scrutinized every outgoing passenger—and the porter and conductor asserted that no one even of a brown complexion had been aboard that train as far as they were aware. "Fore Gaud, gentlemen," protested the porter, "if any dark-skinned person had got into dis heah cab, Ah'd have sized him up fo' nether nigger, an' Ah'd suthin' much remember any nigger dat had de nerve to ride in a Pullman."

Was Aguilar in the employ of Yazimoto, with whom he had been closely connected back in Washington? Was he now an emissary of Baron Zollern?

CHAPTER XV.

"These sleeping car adventures," complained Ramon Solano, as they disembarked at the Chicago station, "are somewhat wearing to the nerves. I suggest, after this, that we either walk or sit up in the day coach. Three strikes and out, you know. Twice we have been extremely lucky in Pullman car happenings—the third time may be bad for both of us."

"I agree with you," assented Brockett. "We can figure out ways and means of transportation, though, after we get through with our mission. I wouldn't mind going back by sea, if such a trip is possible. You have a pocket atlas, haven't you? Yes? Then we can map out a sea voyage to divert ourselves during the afternoon."

"Your cipher," said Solano, thoughtfully, "notified you that you would receive orders in Chicago, didn't it?"

"Yes, so I understood."

HE THROST A COUPLE OF CARDS INTO BROCKETT'S HANDS.

Or was he pursuing a policy of private, personal revenge, of vengeance for the thrashing the boys had given him only a few days before?

Solano, whose Spanish relatives had told him much of the Philippines and the brown, treacherous Tagalogs, was positive that Aguilar was following his own road, fighting for his own hand, and trying only to get even for the bending he had sustained. "A Tagal," argued Ramon, "would forget his employer, his position, everything else on earth, to follow an enemy to the bitter end. That little devil, from the moment we laid hands on him, forgot Yazimoto, Zollern and his own people's cause. All he thought of, from that time to this, was getting even. He may have been trailing us right along, on his own hook. He may have crossed our trail last night by sheer chance, and at once tried to take advantage of the opportunity. He may possibly have been with either Zollern or Yazimoto, allowing them to pay his way around the country, but he wasn't thinking for a single minute of their interests—all that he hoped and dreamed about was his personal revenge."

"I figure it just a little differently," answered Brockett. "I think that he has remained in the employ of one of the two spies—more likely Yazimoto, as two Asiatics would more probably stick together than one Asiatic and a German. Yazimoto, as I see it, followed us on behalf of the Jap, but when he actually got in the same car with us his vengeful spirit was too much for him, and he stabbed me—as he believed—before he could hold back his hand. On calmer afterthought, he must have been utterly embarrassed and unnerved at his deed, and at the light in which he would now appear to Yazimoto. How can he ever make good to the Jap? How can he explain his failure to steal the documents he was after, and make excuses for letting his temper take him outside the path of his duty?"

WHAT BRIDGE IS WARRANTED TO SUPPORT ANY STRAIN?

(ANSWER)

A Permanent Benefit.

J. L. Southern, Clerk Eau Claire House, Eau Claire, Wis., reiterates his statement that Foley Kidney Pills cured him. He says: "Several years ago I wrote you of my remarkable cure by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. One of the worst features of my trouble was sleeplessness. Now to show the lasting benefit of Foley Kidney Pills, after all this time I have had no return of the kidney trouble and I sleep soundly. I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to lots of people who repeat the great good they do them."
